

HENRY STINNIE IS BOUND OVER WITHOUT BAIL

Exciting Scenes Attend Hearing Of Accused Negro

At the conclusion of a preliminary hearing replete with sensational scenes and incidents, Henry Stinnie, a negro employed at the N. & W. terminals, was held to the grand jury without bail by Mayor Frick, Saturday morning, for alleged criminally assaulting Zelma Arthurs, a ten-year-old white girl.

A throng that even exceeded that which gathered for the hearing of the suspects in the Baucus murder mystery some days ago filled the entire vicinity of the mayor's office. So great was the crush that the doors were locked and only a limited number were admitted.

Hundreds crowded about the windows satisfied to secure only a glimpse of the child victim and her alleged assailant.

Pretty Blue-Eyed Girl

The pretty blue-eyed, rosy cheeked little girl, accompanied by her father, L. R. Arthurs, was the cynosure of all eyes. She was remarkably self possessed and answered all questions put to her in an unusually intelligent manner and her general bearing excited favorable comment among all those present. The finger prints of the negro fiend were still plainly visible on her neck. She was suffering with a heavy cold and was given to violent coughing spells.

Stinnie Pleads Not Guilty

The child and father were taken to an adjoining room while Stinnie was formally arraigned. He pleaded not guilty.

Ten or more colored young men somewhat resembling each other with Stinnie amongst them were now lined up. All were told to don their hats and adjust their coats as they were generally accustomed to do.

The child was brought back before the mayor, sworn, then advised as to the real meaning of the oath and cautioned to be truthful and careful. Assuring her that there was no cause for her to feel afraid or disturbed the mayor then commanded her to arise and carefully look at each colored man in the group.

Girl Looks At Men

TWO WILL DIE FROM ASSAULT OF ROBBERS

Elkins, W. Va., Jan. 8.—Two masked men entered the farm house of William Haack, in Barbour county, early today and after shooting his aged mother, attacked him with clubs. Mrs. Haack escaped from the house and making her way to a neighboring farm gave the alarm. No one ventured near the Haack place, however, until 8 o'clock when Haack was found in a dying condition. Mrs. Haack, who was shot in the head, was said at noon to be dying. The robbers secured $800.

BLEASE PARDONS 1,500

Columbia, S. C., Jan. 9.—Full pardons to about 1500 persons convicted in South Carolina of various crimes, and paroled since January 1, 1911, were granted today by Gov. Blease.

The governor had prepared special decrees for the pardons and with one sweep of the pen restored to citizenship approximately 1500 men and women who collectively had violated nearly every law on the statute books. In his four years in office Governor Blease has granted a total of 3165 pardons, paroles and commutations. He will vacate the executive office on January 19.

CONFERENCE AGREES ON THE IMMIGRATION BILL

The revised bill will be ready for the house and senate in a near future.

Police Captains Must Purchase Motor Cars

Chicago, Jan. 9.—Captains in Chicago's police department must purchase automobiles and provide for their maintenance or lose $750 of their annual salary. It was ruled today by Mayor Harrison, after a conference with police officials.

The annual salary of the captains was raised to $3,000 last year, with the understanding that each should purchase a motor car. Recently it was discovered that not a captain purchased an automobile in compliance with the agreement.

KAISER STARTS OFFENSIVE MOVE VIOLENT CAMPAIGN OPENED IN POLAND

London, Jan. 9.—Coincident with their new movement from the north, the Germans have resumed their violent offensive operations to the west of Warsaw. They are hacking their way forward at some points, only to be in turn driven out from their positions by Russian bayonet attacks. This leaves the situation in Poland as a whole about what it was a fortnight ago.

Meanwhile the Russians sweep through the Austrian crownland of Bukovina continues unchecked, according to news dispatches reaching London, and this army is expected by British observers soon to be well over the mountains forming the boundary into Hungary.

Servia, with her army more or less rehabilitated, is described in London as attacking the dual monarchy from the south with renewed vigor. Austria declares that the latest Servian attempts have been repulsed. Nevertheless, credence is given in England to the reports that Germany is planning to throw troops to the assistance of her ally in a third attempt to crush the country of the Serbs. One hundred thousand Prussians and three hundred thousand Austrians, it is said, are (Continued on Page 3.)

HELLO, GOVERNOR!

Columbus, Jan. 9.—"Hello, governor," was the greeting of Mr. Willis to Mr. Cox, as the two met at the door of the executive's private office at noon.

"Hello, governor," replied Mr. Cox. "Glad to see you. Come in a while and chat."

The two men, incoming and outgoing governors, defeated candidate for re-election and victor, were closeted in the private office for 20 minutes and both came out beaming with smiles.

About the door was a throng of democratic office holders and state employees. Mr. Willis shook hands with many and called a number by name. A few legislators greeted him in the corridors.

Then Mr. Willis was besieged by newspaper photographers, and a man with a moving picture camera ground off reels of films.

RUMANIA WILL MOBILIZE SOON

Paris, Jan. 9.—The Rumanian mobilization will begin in the last week of January, according to the Petit Parisien, by the calling up of three classes totalling 135,000 men. The mobilization will be continued until 600,000 men are ready for the field.

It is expected that Switzerland will be asked to take charge of Rumanian interests in Germany and Austria, the Petit Parisien says, but it adds that the cabinet has made no definite arrangement as yet.

SENATORS CAN GIVE WIVES GOOD EXCUSE

Washington, Jan. 9.—The senate today is confronted with possible night sessions to consider the government ship purchase bill. This possibility has arisen because but little progress has thus far been made in the consideration of the measure.

Although the shipping bill has been before the senate for several days, as unfinished business only two days have been given over to the measure, it having been sidetracked for the District of Columbia appropriation bill. Administration leaders were determined that unless greater progress was made on the measure today they would seriously consider holding night sessions.

PLAN TO CELEBRATE KAISER'S BIRTHDAY

Amsterdam (via London, Jan. 9)—The Prussian ministry of state, according to a Berlin dispatch to the Telegraph has issued a notice that "in view of the seriousness of the times the greater public festivities, such as dinners, theatricals and dances should be postponed on the occasion of the forthcoming birthday of the Kaiser, Jan. 27."

"On the other hand," the notice continues, "celebrations appropriate to the significance of the day are contemplated for all proceeds."

SWAMPED ON SHORT WHEAT N. Y. BROKER ENDS HIS LIFE

New York, Jan. 9.—G. F. Stringer, junior member of the stock exchange firm of Stringer and company, shot himself and died instantly in his office a few minutes before the suspension of the firm was announced today on the floor of the stock exchange.

To the sensational rise in wheat within the past few days was attributed the failure of the firm by C. A. Decker, its counsel. Mr. Decker said that Stringer and company had been "badly caught on the short side" of the market and had failed for about $100,000.

WHEAT DROPS TWO CENTS

Chicago, Jan. 9.—Wheat dropped today as if struck with a hammer. Opening prices were in some cases nearly 2 cents a bushel lower than last night. May sold down to $1.39 as compared with $1.40 7-8 at yesterday's closing. Fear of the effects of talk of an embargo on the export of bread stuffs as well as on arms and munition had much to do with the sudden decline.

Peace In Mexico

Washington, Jan. 9.—Progress of negotiations between the warring factions in Mexico by which the problem of "pacification of Mexico" has practically been solved, were announced last night to the convention in Mexico City by Gen. Gutierrez.

TIGHTEN LID IN TOLEDO

Toledo, Jan. 9.—Chief Murphy, this morning, in compliance with Safety Director Greenewald's orders on Friday, issued an order to the inspector of detectives, ordering him to instruct his men to get the evidence on all gambling houses and prosecute them. It was the complaint to the police of a man who asserted that he had been fleeced out of $110 in Eddie Fritz's alleged gambling house that caused the order.

When police visited the Fritz establishment this morning they found the doors locked.

BIG FIRE AT E. LIVERPOOL

OHIO'S NEXT GOVERNOR ENJOYS TWO DAYS AS REAL "PRIVATE CITIZEN"

LOVE WIFE OF NEW YORK LAWYER

First published photograph of Mrs. Ida Walters Rogers, the love wife of Lorrys Elton Rogers, the New York attorney.

New York, Jan. 9.—District Attorney Martin, of Bronx county, is said to be contemplating the advisability of ordering a grand jury investigation to ascertain whether Lorrys Elton Rogers, prominent middle-aged lawyer, was in any way responsible for the action of his common-law wife, Mrs. Ida Sniffen Walters Rogers, in murdering her two children and in poisoning herself with the same preparation administered to the babies. Rogers' legal wife is said to be preparing to sue him for divorce so that he may marry the woman he is supposed to really love, in the event that she recovers.

300 BAKE SHOPS CLOSE BECAUSE OF ADVANCE IN FLOUR

Chicago, Jan. 9.—Between 200 and 300 small baking establishments have been compelled to close within the last few days on account of the high price of flour, it was learned today.

Authorities in the baking trade said that unless the market falls sharply within the next two or three weeks bread will be advanced to six cents a loaf.

PRISONERS GAIN BRIEF LIBERTY

Columbus, Jan. 9.—By felling their custodian George Bryan and James Walsh, charged with the recent robbery of the postoffice at Rushing, Belmont county, where they obtained $1400, obtained only a brief respite early today as they were captured again after a chase of two blocks. A fusillade of shots fired by pursuing officers sent pedestrians to cover in South High street where the attempted escape occurred. The men were being brought to the Columbus jail by Deputy U. S. Marshal McAlister, of Marietta, to await arraignment in federal court.

Taking advantage of an opportunity moment the two prisoners tripped Deputy McAlister and sent him sprawling into the gutter. Two city detectives happened to be nearby and joined Deputy Marshal McAlister in the shooting which resulted in the capture of the quarry.

HUMANE SIDE OF WILLIS IS SHOWN IN INTERVIEW

Columbus, O., Jan. 9.—Frank B. Willis, citizen, came to town today. He received a few personal and political friends at an East Broad street hotel where he and Mrs. Willis will make their home, called at the executive office to pay his personal respects to Gov. Cox, took a look at building operations about the capital in preparation for his inauguration as governor Monday, held a conference with a dozen newspaper men in his hotel room and refused to talk politics.

"Today and tomorrow I am absolutely a private citizen," said the big man. "My resignation from congress became effective last night, and thank goodness, I won't have to be governor until Monday."

Tells of His First Trip To Columbus

Mr. Willis told about the first time he came to Columbus. "I was a boy living at (Columbus), up the road here a few miles," he said, "and I was crazy to come to Columbus and visit the fire department. I had an uncle, Phil." (Continued on Page 3.)

CONCILIATORS GET TOGETHER

Cincinnati, Jan. 9.—Hywel Davies and Daniel J. Keefe, U. S. conciliation commissioners, who are endeavoring to settle the strike in the coal fields of Eastern Ohio, arrived here today for their first conference, after having seen a number of miners and operators. The two commissioners are expected to exchange views on the situation today and sometime next week are expected to begin the actual work of bringing the contending sides together.

No one can conceive the extreme pleasure it gives me to record good weather dope for the people of this fair city. They deserve good weather and ought to have it. And while I'm on this job and can keep things going right they're gonna have it. Here's something especially nice for Sunday: Ohio—Fair tonight and Sunday. Slightly warmer Sunday. EDITH KRONK TELLS HOW SHE FLED FROM HER HOME IN THE NIGHT

From the girl's lips, a Times man heard a graphic recital Friday morning of Edith Kronk's experiences from the time of her sudden flight from home in Madison township last Tuesday morning until she was returned to her relatives in this city Friday afternoon.

She told of her twenty mile walk over strange roads to Sciotoville in the dead of night, of how she came from Sciotoville to Portsmouth Tuesday afternoon on a street car and spent the night in a rooming house on Eleventh street, and then how she boarded an N. & W. train early Wednesday morning for Columbus changing to the Big Four for Dayton. Her detention by the officers of the Associated Charities in that city and her return to this city formed the closing chapter of the narrative of the inexperienced country girl, who crowded more adventure into her first trip away from home than falls to the lot of some people in a lifetime.

Unsatisfactory conditions at home were given as the reason for her strange disappearance by Miss Kronk, who is now staying at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Sarah J. Kronk, who lives in the rear of 911 Fourth street. She claims that she and her sister and brother, who have been living at the old home since the death of their father, William A. Kronk, have not been getting along well together.

Miss Kronk is heir to an undivided one-fifth part of a 116-acre farm in Madison township, left by her father, she says, and claims some of her relatives have been trying to persuade her to dispose of her share.

Started Out At An Early Hour

Arising at two o'clock last Tuesday morning, she started out on foot in the darkness for Sciotoville, although she had never made the trip before and did not know the way. She reached Harrisonville, a distance of four miles, without trouble, and then took the road leading through what is known as the Lower Glade into the Egypt country. By a devious route which took her several miles out of her way, she finally struck the Harrisonville-Sciotoville pike at the Bennett school house, near where she was directed toward Sciotoville.

It was after nine o'clock Tuesday morning, when weary and foot-sore, she reached Sciotoville. From her purse containing a little over $7, she purchased a few minor articles at Pease's store, and then went to the N. & W. depot to await the arrival of the afternoon N. & W. train for Columbus. Tiring of waiting, she decided to come to Portsmouth on the electric line, and landed in this city about five o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Stayed In City Over Night

Upon her arrival here, she was directed to the N. & W. depot, where she learned that the next train for Columbus did not leave until early the following morning. She obtained lodging in a room above the Cook restaurant on Eleventh street, where she spent the night. She arose about three o'clock Wednesday morning and caught the early morning train for Columbus, boarding the Big Four train at the capital city for Dayton.

Her first act upon her arrival at Dayton was to go to a home near the depot and apply for work. The man who answered her knock invited her inside, and told her to wait. In the meantime, he notified the Associated Charities, and an agent of that organization came in a little while and took charge of her. She was removed to the detention hospital, and her relatives near Harrisonville notified of her whereabouts.

Sent Money For Transportation

Money to pay her transportation to this city was forwarded and she was placed aboard a C. & O. train for Cincinnati Friday morning, in charge of a woman from the Associated Charities. At Cincinnati, she was transferred to the C. & O. train which reached South Portsmouth Friday afternoon. Relatives met her at the train and took her to the home of her aunt.

At the Kronk home on Fourth street, it was stated that she would be cared for there for the present. Application will be made in probate court for the appointment of an administrator of the Kronk estate, and every precaution taken to protect her interests, it was stated.

Exaggerated accounts of the girl's infirmities have been given out. Though afflicted with weak eyes, she gets around without difficulty, and is apparently in the best of health. Relatives, however, marvel at her ability to get around as well as she did, for she had never been away from home before in her entire lifetime.

Smith Will

A copy of the will of Edgar Smith, late of Boyd county, Ky., was filed in the Scioto county probate court Saturday. The estate consists of 107 acres in Nile township, this county, and is bequeathed equally to the mother of the deceased, Matilda Smith, his sister, Mrs. W. O. Bradley, and his brother, James L. Smith, all of Kentucky. The original copy of the will is on file in the office of the county clerk of Boyd county.

Plan For Normal

County School Superintendent E. O. McCowan went to McDermott, Saturday morning, to meet with the school teachers of Rush township relative to the advisability of conducting an Extension Normal School in that section during the balance of the school year.

IN FIVE MINUTES NO SICK STOMACH, INDIGESTION, GAS

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach headache, you can surely get relief in five minutes.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula, plainly printed on these fifty-cent boxes of Pape's Diapiesin, then you will understand why dyspeptic troubles of all kinds must go, and why it relieves sour, out-of-order stomachs or indigestion in five minutes. "Pape's Diapiesin" is harmless; tastes like candy, though each dose will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but what will please you most, is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for biliousness or constipation.

This city will have many some people will call them but you will be enthusiastic about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever take it for indigestion, gas, heartburn, sourness, dyspepsia, or any stomach misery.

Get some now, this minute, and rid yourself of stomach misery and indigestion in five minutes.

HENRY STINNIE IS BOUND OVER

she again stopped. Sizing him up from head to foot, she said: "I think that's the one because he looked just like him." She continued around but shook her head as she moved from one to the other and returning to in front of Stinnie and stood still a moment. She looked at him a moment and then glanced at Spaulding. The latter was ordered to substitute a cap for his hat.

Points At Stinnie

Pointing at Stinnie she said: "This one looks more like him." The mayor called the child's attention to the difference in color of the two men, Spaulding being a yellow negro while Stinnie is dark. "They don't look much alike to me," replied the child.

She repeatedly declared that the coat worn by Spaulding resembled the one of the man who had assaulted her but that Stinnie's face was like that of her assailant. She said the man who assaulted her wore overalls but she was unable to say whether they were dirty or clean.

Stinnie Put On Another Coat

Stinnie was now given another of his coats to put on. The child insisted it was not the coat. She said the man had worn a sort of short green colored coat. "He looks like him in the face, though," she repeated.

The child, who said she attended the Union street school, said the morning after the family moved to the North End from Front and Clover streets had been spoken to by a colored man who greeted her by saying "Good morning." He had done so several times, would walk down the street and back and turn around in front of her home.

Stinnie and Spaulding were now ordered to address the child to give her an opportunity to hear their voices. Both spoke the words "Good morning." She felt they were somewhat similar but that Stinnie's voice was coarser and quicker.

Officer Moore On The Stand

Officer Roy Moore, who had worked on the case all day and who arrested Stinnie, was the next witness. He told of Stinnie suddenly switching, boarding places and that he had told him of having become tired of boarding at the George Hollingsworth home, corner Sixteenth and Waller street. He said he had taken a notion to change. Moore told of the search he made of Stinnie's effects. He said there was a third coat he had not brought along.

Mrs. Hollingsworth, though not a witness, appeared so anxious to talk that the mayor gave her the opportunity. She told of Stinnie slanting in an alley house back of her home but that for the past few weeks he had planned to move for fear her daughter Fronie would set fire to the place and burn him up.

The mayor now ordered the third coat introduced as evidence. Officers hurried after it and Stinnie was ordered to put it on. Instantly the child saw it shuddered and the coat was too long. "The face and cap though look like the same," she declared. Spaulding was then given another cap but the child's only comment was "It makes him look a little different."

Child Tells Of Assault

The child described how when her father sent her to a nearby store after land she saw a colored man standing under a light at Fourteenth and Kinney streets. He stooped down as if to tie his shoe strings and said "How do you do?"

to her. He walked ahead of her and suddenly placing one hand over her mouth and on an arm about her waist carried her into an alley. She said she screamed three times and then he threatened to kill her if she did so again. She said she did not become conscious again until she fell into her father's arms and he took her to a saloon to see if the negro was there.

The father briefly related that his daughter was always prompt in running errands and how he worried when she failed to return at once. He said he must have been close to the negro for as he reached the alley she came running to him and threw her arms about him. She was unable to talk for a few minutes then told of a negro taking her down the alley and harming her. He said the child's mother was dead.

Boy Goes On Stand

James Dement, a 15-year-old boy of Higby's Ohio, employed in a local shoe factory, and who lives with an uncle, Will Wiseman, was the witness upon whom the police relied in connecting Stinnie with the assault but fell down to some degree.

The boy had seen a negro running on Sixteenth street with all his might about 7:40 Thursday evening, saying he had disappeared either in the alley or between some houses near the Hollingsworth home. He said he wore overalls and a coat but did not notice whether he had a hat or cap. He did not learn of the assault until next morning and then at once believed the negro he had seen was the guilty one. He did not give it sufficient concern to follow his uncle's advice of telling the police but the uncle did so himself.

Asked the direct question if the man was not Henry Stinnie the boy turned and after gazing at the defendant a moment remarked: "The fellow looks something like him."

Stinnie Put On The Stand

This state now rested and Stinnie was put on the stand in his own behalf. He at once sought to establish an alibi. He said he had come home from work about 6 o'clock that evening, coming from East Portsmouth on a street car with Archie Taylor and John Higgins. Young called on him and later Fred Higgins came and told him Fred Davis awaited him outside. He started to change clothes preparatory to moving. He had decided to keep out of trouble by getting away from Fronie Hollingsworth and had engaged a house of Alex Davis in Paradise alley on last Monday evening. Jake Haley, Will Saunders and Leo Good carried his trunk. He denied having ever spoken to or seen the Arthurs girl until Friday evening. Stinnie said he was in a habit of chewing "Honest Scrap" tobacco but did not remember having chewed any Thursday evening. Spaulding also admitted that he chewed scrap tobacco but said he had none to chew Thursday evening. The Arthurs child was questioned if her assailant had expected tobacco into her mouth and she gave the opinion that it was not tobacco.

Other Witnesses Give Testimony

Fred Davis, Jake Haley, Will Saunders, Leo Good and Roy McKinley all testified to having seen Stinnie early Thursday evening, the former four telling of his morning in which they had helped but they varied somewhat in the time. All admitted that they did not work and the mayor asked each in turn why it was that they had not chosen the day time for the removal. This Stinnie explained by saying he first wished to change his clothes, after returning from work.

Alex Davis told of Stinnie speaking for the house last Monday, but that he did not really engage it until Thursday evening. Others and Stinnie himself declared he intended moving Wednesday but that rain interfered. McKinley told of having met the moving party and that he later saw Stinnie at Smith & Ferguson's saloon about 9:45 p.m.

Throughout the hearing Stinnie refrained from looking at the girl save when she was speaking of him and then only gave her quick side glances, but Spaulding often gazed at the child, occasionally smiling at her references to him. While Stinnie looked earnest and worried Spaulding did not appear agitated in the least.

Mayor Talks On Case

The mayor in passing on the testimony said there was no doubt in his mind but that the child had positively identified Stinnie as the man who assaulted her, recalling how she had singled him out from among a great number who looked nearly alike, how she had exercised caution in so doing and that it was a mental and physical impossibility in her excitement to have thoroughly noticed the coat worn by her assailant. He said Stinnie was charged with a very serious offense—one that any court could not help but take notice of and he felt that the evidence was sufficient to warrant him over to the grand jury, which is the proper place for presenting all of the evidence and facts in the case. He expressed his sorrow for the accused but assured him he would receive the protection of the county jail. Stinnie raised his finger, evidently wanting to be heard but the court ended the hearing by ordering his transfer to the county jail.

Hundreds surrounded the city service wagon into which the prisoner was hustled to the sheriff's office but there was no demonstration.

Near-Race Riot Breaks Out

A near-race riot occurred during the progress of the hearing. George Rodinger, a dairyman of Rosemount Road, wanted to peep into the court room through a window, but felt several negroes were purposely blocking the way. He made some slighting remark which they at once took up. Elton Ferguson and a few others surrounded the white man while a crowd of white people gathered about. Serious trouble seemed imminent as the men were sharply exchanging words but Officer Roy Moore ordered the crowd to disperse. Once the would-be scoundrels had rounded the corner of the building another clash was about to result when Chief W. T. McCarty took a hand by breaking up the gathering.

Police Took Precautions

While there was little talk of violence Friday night police took no chances and carefully guarded the city prison. One man called up over telephone and advised that Stinnie had better be removed to a place of safety but Sergeant Jim Marshall sharply took the unknown to task. Will McConnell, a colored grocer, also called up and inquired if Stinnie was properly protected. He was assured that he was.

It is said that when Stinnie was taken to the Arthurs home Friday afternoon and identified by the girl, women, both white and black, and armed with brooms, clubs and other weapons prepared to make a demonstration but that the police held them in check.

Can't Find Craig

Police have been unable to find Jim Craig against whom M. Jacobs swore out a warrant charging him with the alleged theft of an iron cog wheel valued at $20.

Dorothy Louise, 10 months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gulick, of Twelfth street, is sick, threatened with pneumonia.

WILSON DEFENDS HIS POLICIES IN INDIANA SPEECH

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 9.—(On board President Wilson's train) President Wilson was on his way back to Washington today after making his first purely political speech, since he assumed the presidency. He will arrive at the capital at 4:40 o'clock this afternoon.

Gossip was rife among the president's friends over the meaning of his statement in his Indianapolis speech that "there may come a time when the American people will have to judge whether I know what I am talking about or not."

Some of his friends insisted that the president was merely referring to the fact that future generations will judge his actions, and that he did not intend to convey the impression, which was gained by the crowd that he might be a candidate again for the presidency. Other of his friends pointed out that he evidently realized, because of the cheering, the construction that had been placed on his words, and yet he did not correct the impression beyond saying, "I didn't intend to start anything then."

Mexican Policy Is Defended

President Wilson announced himself as in favor of a national employment bureau for the first time in his political career; he defended his policy of "watchful waiting" in Mexico; he held the Republican party up to scorn as an organization which had not had a "new idea in 30 years," and declared that the courts of the nation must adopt speedier efforts of administering justice in the near future.

He called upon the people of the United States to cast their gaze upon the European war if they could be satisfied with life in a free and peaceful republic.

"I love the Democratic party, but I love the country more," he said. He declared that "when-ever the Democratic party ceased to be the party of progress he would leave it."

The president declared that the new currency act had been responsible for the first January decrease in many decades in which the money stringency had not occurred.

"The present Congress has the most remarkable record of any since the Civil war," he declared.

He also created a sensation by declaring that "if the last November election had been a presidential one the Democratic party would have had a majority of votes in the electoral college."

Although the president was given a most prosaic and uneventful reception on the streets of Indianapolis, he was greeted by overflowing enthusiasm during the course of his address. He was given a reception at Senator Kern's home before his address and an automobile ride through the city after his speech.

new Edward Buell, who was a captain in an engine house. So my folks put me in charge of Elmer Adams, a Galena village business man and he brought me to the biggest city I had ever seen. I tell you, boys, that fire department was a wonderful thing to me."

"How old were you, Mr. Willis?" he was asked.

"Oh, about ten or a dozen years old, I guess—about the ordinary age of a boy growing up. I am a bit ashamed to tell you how old I was, for I ought to have seen a city before then. But I hadn't."

"What time do you get up?" he was asked.

"Oh, I'm not a particularly early riser," said he, "unless business is pressing. I'll stroll down to the office by the time any of you news men are here though, I guess."

Doesn't Own Automobile And Doesn't Expect To

Mr. Willis said he didn't own an automobile, "not even a—," and he named a popular brand of motor car. He declared he wouldn't buy one during his term and intimated that the main reason is that he can't afford it. He will walk to work down Broad street from the hotel, which is about three-quarters of a mile from the capital.

He admitted published reports that he likes corn on the cob and denied that he is fond of pitching horse shoes, pronounced his weight as 250 pounds avoirdupois, said his wife is boss on every thing pertaining to the home and that she will decide what church they will attend while in Columbus. Mrs. Willis joined her husband here today coming from her former home in Galena.

Mr. Willis has a voice that nearly made the pictures on the wall shake as he talks. He has a hand grip that is just as vice-like as the grip he meets. He is so tall that most people look up to him, but he looks up several inches to his executive clerk, Ralph Dodd, of Bellefontaine, his private secretary while he was in congress. Forest Tipton of Kenton, his present private secretary, is the smallest of the three.

The new governor-elect arranged to hold a daily conference with newspaper men at 10:15 in the morning and may arrange another for the afternoon. He will follow the plan of correspondents' conferences, instituted by President Wilson, who meets with newspaper men twice a week and answers any of their questions he can and may. Mr. Willis agreed to talk freely with news men at these conferences and then explained precisely what may be published and what must be held in confidence.

Areas For Developments

The present position of Austria-Hungary, according to observers who today are giving expression to their views, is most critical. Threatened from the east and from the south and with Rumania preparing to cast her lot with the allies, the war is being brought to her front door. This is in sharp contrast to the comparative inactivity from strife which Germany continues to enjoy with only small strips of territory in east Russia and Alsace occupied by her antagonists. Now more than ever before, therefore followers of the conflict in England look to the eastern arena for immediate developments of importance.

French Warfare Will Continue In The West

In Belgium and France the allies are making some hard earned gains and the Germans are also making progress. The opposing forces are so nearly evenly matched and the positions of their trenches are such that sapping and bomb throwing must be relied on chiefly to bring any gains and barring a lucky victory in the sporadic artillery duels this form of warfare doubtless will persist along the line in Flanders and in France until the weather improves the ground and permits more extensive infantry operations.

Several days have passed since the first reports of Russian victories over the Turks in the Caucasus, but the Turks have not admitted any reverses in the territory.

THRILLING STORY OF "WAR ON THE SEAS" IS RELATED BY A GERMAN GUNNER ON BRESLAU

Dresden, Jan. 9.—Almost the first details which have reached Germany of the various engagements between the Russian and Turkish fleets in the Black Sea, are contained in a letter of a German gunner serving aboard the Turkish battleship Midilli, formerly the German cruiser Breslau.

He writes:

"We were at Trebizond (a Black Sea port of Asiatic Turkey) when we received word from the Sultan Jawns Selim (formerly the German cruiser Goeben) that a Russian fleet, composed of six battleships and eleven torpedo boats and destroyers, had bombarded a small Turkish town on the Anatolian coast. The admiral wanted satisfaction for this act. We arrived before Poti at seven the next morning. The engines had hardly stopped when the first shots went screeching through the air. We were close to the town.

"First we made a large crane our mark. It went down. Then we paid attention to some large magazines.

"We had shot for some time when we drew fire. Machine guns and rifles began to pepper us from shore. A few shells, however, silenced them. After that the shore batteries took a hand, firing short at first and then to the side.

"We were hit just once. A shell tore a large hole in our flag—that's all. It is a good souvenir which we will hoist in all our battles.

"After we had finished with Poti we went to the Turkish town Ordu, where we were given ten bags of nuts and ten sheep as a tribute.

In Unife we were cheered on the streets and carried about on men's shoulders.

"I will have to write you about the bombardment of Novorossysk. After we had shot from 50 to 60 oil tanks into flames, we sank 14 large steamers, most of them oil-tankers, finished some grain elevators and some large wood yards, the wireless station and what not. The oil spread the fire everywhere, and that night, far out at sea, we could see the sky one mass of flames.

"While we were busy with this the Sultan Jawns Selim tried issues with the fortress of Sebastopol. The Russians fired about 1,200 shots at her without doing any damage. Some Russian officers we had taken prisoners would not believe that such a thing was possible.

"The Russians meanwhile had bombarded Trebizond and had laid mines to the great annoyance of Constantinopolitan officialdom. The Russian fleet which had done all this was to be caught and the Midilli, in common with another was ordered to proceed upon this mission.

"We had just had our noon meal when the drum beat the command: 'clear for action.' Well, our seamen are lively boys, and know that a moment's delay may bring us all a very, very cold trip to the bottom of the sea. We were at our stations in less time than it takes to tell.

"From the circumambient mist appeared suddenly a cloud of smoke, then a ship—the enemy. I counted two, three, four, five, six, seven—all of them big fellows, and then to make things doubly interesting five smaller tabs formed the tail end of the procession. I will always remember the picture of those twelve ships coming out of the fog. Twelve Russians to two Turks.

"However, the business began. Owing to the bad weather we got to within a scant five miles of the Russians. And they were thoroughly angry with us. First we drew a few of their 30.5 centimeter shells, then came some '20ers' and finally they threw in their '15ers.' The water about us jumped and churned, rose in columns and left deep holes. We didn't know which way to turn. To port and starboard, fore and aft, below us and over us nothing but shot and shell.

"But after a few minutes we got things running smoothly and then managed to get away without being hit even once."

FIELD MARSHAL FRENCH LOST CHANCE TO SPLIT GERMAN LINE

Correspondent of Associated Press Tells of Gap That Might Have Been Opened Wider With Great Gain For Allies Resulting

A Town On The Aisne, France, Dec. 15. (Correspondence of The Associated Press)—A little battle grave yard by the roadside, only a half dozen soldier graves with wooden crosses, marks the high-water point reached by the British in the battle of the Aisne in late September. It lies near the Chemin des Dames, (road of the ladies), which roughly parallels with the Aisne three or four miles north of the river and only a short distance from the battered sugar factory of Troyon, for which the Royal Sussex regiment, the King's Royal Rifles and the Royal North Lancashire regiment paid so heavy a price in the battle of September 15.

Field Marshal Sir John French registers the names in his report of October 8, in which he tells how the British forces, following up the retirement of the Germans from the Marne line, crossed the Aisne east of Soissons and fought their way to the top of the ridge of hills on the north bank, where they were checked and held by the German troops.

This was three months ago; the Germans later drove the allies from the hills almost to the river and now hold the ground in strong force, entrenched to the eyes, there is therefore no harm in revealing what Sir John may not have known, that a dangerous gap had opened between two of the retiring German armies at this point, that by a slightly more vigorous offensive he might have thrust the British forces into the opening and split the German army in two and that it was the German army corps of which the correspondent of the Associated Press is now the guest, arrived only in time to close the hole and enable the German armies to stand on the line of the Aisne instead of continuing their retreat to some other line farther north. The English troops were already well over the crest of the ridge and the Germans had a doubly difficult task to fight their way up the steep northern slope of the range and re-establish their broken line.

The ground over which the battle then swayed is now a labyrinth of approach trenches, zig zags and parallels, marking the successive stages by which the German troops sapped and fought their way forward to their present lines. They now hold the greater part of the southern slope.

The allies lines, now occupied by the French instead of the English, are in the lowlands of the valley. All the high points on this side of the river are held by the Germans so that the French have no observation points from which to direct the fire of their artillery. They can only fire blindly over the ridge at points where they suspect the presence of German batteries or infantry supports, notably at a little village called Cernay, which is now a picturesque heap of ruins as can be found along the whole Aisne front.

In the noon luncheon hour during which the French artillery is usually silent a visit was paid in reasonable security of the village.

During the rest of the day and night shells are dropping in intervals. Particular attention is paid to the village well, the assumption probably being that the Germans come there for water. Half a mile away, in a sheltered spot in the valley, within a radius of fifty yards, the correspondent counted 15 fresh shell holes. "The French guessed that one of our batteries might be in that spot," said the artillery lieutenant acting as guide, "and have just dropped a salvo of shells there. The battery is not there, however, as you see."

England No Longer Criticises Officials

London, Jan. 9.—Criticism of the government's war preparations which was rampant during early stages of the war has largely ceased. Indicating that the general public has either settled down to the belief that everything is being done about as well as possible, or has tired of writing letters to the press.

The war office has now enlisted the services of business men with experience in carrying out big enterprises to take part in the work of supplying the army, and the labor unions have volunteered to watch the execution of government contracts, not only to see that proper equipment and rations are supplied to the soldiers, but to prevent scabbing.

Arnold White, a prominent writer and former colonial official has been making a thorough inspection of the training camps for the purpose of detecting any scandals and mismanagement.

Help! Who Can Tell Who Owns Bullet On Wounded Soldier?

Berlin, Jan. 9.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press)—The question, to whom does the projectile in the body of a wounded soldier belong, is discussed gravely by Court Assessor Lange in the German Juristic Magazine with an article declaring the ownership of such missiles to reside in the state.

The soldier who sends it on its way does not thus surrender his state's ownership in it. His object is merely to do as much damage as he can, and it must be assumed that he intends to re-obtain possession of the missile thereafter for reusing or other possible use. If, however, it be assumed that the state originally owning the projectile gives up

Feds Will Fight For Catcher Wingo

Cincinnati, Jan. 6.—According to President James M. Gilmore of the Federal league, who is in this city attending the hearing of the Magee case, Ivy Wingo, the catcher who was transferred yesterday from the St. Louis Nationals to the Cincinnati club will not be allowed to leave the federal league ranks without a struggle.

President Gilmore said this morning that injunction proceedings against Wingo playing with the Cincinnati or any other National or American league club would be filed shortly. He added that at this time, he did not know where the suit would be filed or the exact date of the filing.

their heels. If I were out to pick holes in our administration it would not be in the general management of the war."

DISCOUNT RUMORS OF SALE OF U. S. GUNS

Washington, Jan. 9.—War department officials here today believed that an inventory taken by Secretary Garrison showing that none of the government's discarded Krug-Jorgensen army rifles have been removed from United States arsenals since the European war began, would set at rest persistent and widespread rumors that they were being sold to European belligerents.

In a statement based on this inventory, Secretary Garrison declared that the government has no present intention of changing its order issued last summer prohibiting the sale of these guns. The statement said there was no foundation for the rumors and that the order to stop the sale of the guns was issued to make sure that none reached the fighting nations.

AUSTRIAN ARMY CAUGHT IN TRAP

Geneva (via Paris), Jan. 9.—The Austrians have been caught in a trap skillfully set by Generals Busky and Ivanoff, according to advices from a Hungarian source received here without first passing through the hands of the Austrian censor.

In conformity with the Russian plan, the advices say, the Austrian columns, pushing toward the Nida river found themselves stopped by dangerous marshes. At the same time the Russians attacked the Austrians suddenly abandoned their original plan but resumed their attack in a totally unexpected manner.

With the Russian army occupying the most important positions of the Carpathians from the side of Bochnia, the Austrian army can advance no further towards Warsaw for the only roads across the marshes are mined and strongly held by the Russians. On the other hand the Austrians are obliged to defend Cracow and because of the Russian maneuvers can only meet the Russians along the line from Weitzkau to Bochnia under the most unfavorable conditions.

PARAGUAY REVOLUTION WAS SOON SUPPRESSED

Washington, Jan. 9.—Details of the recent revolutionary outbreak at Asuncion, Paraguay, where rebels captured the president and held him prisoner for twelve hours were before state department officials today in a delayed cablegram from American minister Mooney. The dispatch was summarized by the department as follows:

"The advices state that the outbreak occurred at daybreak on January 2; that the president was placed in captivity and that he was held for twelve hours. It is stated that at seven o'clock in the evening of the second the revolution was suppressed. All during the day there was shooting of muskets and a vigorous cannonading. It was reported that there were not more than seventy-five killed and wounded. The national theatre and police headquarters were badly shattered and considerable damage was done to private property."

AS TO THE WAVERLY DEMOCRAT.

The Waverly Democrat, in this week's issue, had this comment upon the appointment of Hon. Matthew W. Merriman, of Gallipolis, to the position of judge of the court of appeals:

"On last Saturday, the Hon. M. W. Merriman was appointed Appellate Judge to succeed Hon. T. A. Jones who is now a member of the Supreme court. Judge Merriman, who is a splendid man and Democrat, will serve until 1916 at $8,000 per year at which time, it is presumed, he will be a candidate for election."

"It had come to be pretty generally conceded that Mr. Eylar, of Pike, would receive the appointment at the hands of Governor Cox, in the interest of whose election Mr. Eylar had been an active and strong partisan."

"Recently, it has leaked out that Nye and Brown, of Pike, enlisting the assistance of Editor Harry Taylor of The Portsmouth Daily Times, hid themselves to Columbus where, in company with Chairman W. L. Finley, a council of war was held with Governor Cox. Result, the selection of Merriman."

"To be entirely fair to Mr. Finley and Governor Cox, it ought to be explained that Nye is not listened to because of any faith or confidence they have, any more, in the big boss; but only because they believe that Nye is still powerful enough in Pike to deliver the political goods."

"Editor Taylor's connection with the appointment is explained upon the basis of his warm friendship for Editor Merriman as well as his alleged friendship for Nye."

"This latest betrayal of Eylar by Nye, following his secret opposition to Eylar as Common Pleas Judge at the recent election, is one of the bitterest disappointments, it is believed, that has come to the Waverly attorney in his entire political career."

"Naturally, he expected the loyal support of Nye and his followers and now that he did not receive it, his future relations with the gang, will be watched by Democrats and Republicans alike."

We are not interested in the sometimes weird newspaper and political fight that is being waged day in and day out in Pike county, but we are interested in misrepresentation of ourselves in connection with the scrap, and the above article is without foundation, so far as Mr. Taylor is concerned. The editor of the Democrat was either imposed upon or else he simply took liberties with another man's name without any justification or attempt at investigation.

The facts are, in so far as Mr. Taylor is concerned, as follows: He has no knowledge of the attitude of Messrs. Nye and Brown upon the court of appeals appointment, never having discussed the matter with them either directly or indirectly. He does not know Mr. Brown, having no recollection of ever having met the gentleman. Mr. Taylor never had any conference with Messrs. Nye and Brown and Chairman Finley and Governor Cox about the court of appeals or any other matter. Not only that he never had any consultation, in connection with any one, with Mr. Finley and Governor Cox about this court appointment matter.

There never has been any misunderstanding among the parties contesting for the appointment as to the attitude of Mr. Taylor. Early in the contest, in response to a letter from Mr. John A. Eylar, Mr. Taylor wrote that gentleman that, in the absence of a candidate from Scioto county, he was pledged, in support of Mr. Merriman, in case he became a candidate. If he were not a candidate then Mr. Taylor would be very much pleased to support Mr. Eylar, but that in any event his activity would be confined to a letter of endorsement and not to personal solicitation. Mr. Eylar never misunderstood the position of Mr. Taylor and Mr. Merriman also understood that if he withdrew from the race or that he felt he had no chance of landing and released his friends, Mr. Taylor would endorse Mr. Eylar. Mr. Taylor gave Mr. Merriman a letter to Governor Cox and it was a pleasure to do so for Mr. Merriman had been his close personal and political friend for many years and he has ever had a very high opinion of Mr. Merriman's ability, honesty and integrity. He did not personally discuss the matter either with Mr. Finley or with Governor Cox.

The Democrat is also pleased to sneer at what it terms the "alleged friendship of Mr. Taylor for Nye." Just why we do not understand, as that is a personal matter between Dr. Nye and Mr. Taylor solely, but certainly there is nothing "alleged" about it so far as Mr. Taylor is concerned. While not approving of some of the methods of Dr. Nye in politics, he has, for many years, had a warm personal liking for Dr. Nye and he has the same feeling today, when Nye has his troubles as in the days when he was sailing on the high seas of prosperity. Mr. Taylor has always tried to be consistent in his relations with his friends, not considering that personal feeling bound him to approve or disapprove everything that they did. For instance some years ago when Dr. Nye stood out as the dominant figure in Pike county politics with no cloud on his horizon, this same Waverly Democrat, then Nye's militant friend, bitterly censured Mr. Taylor because he refused to be a party to a campaign attack upon the honesty and integrity of another friend, Mr. H. C. Barnes, who was at that time a candidate for representative against Dr. Nye, an attack in which Mr. Taylor had full opportunity of knowing the facts. He did not hesitate then regardless of effect on the election, to make public the facts as he understood them, any more than he does not hesitate now to say that personally he likes Dr. Nye, expects to continue to like him and doesn't care a continental who knows it, approves it or disapproves it. He is not in the "fair weather friend" class and has no ambition to be.

"I'm in a quandary this morning," said the man next to us on the street car as he dropped into his seat and gazed at the sign that advertised to the world that "Wiggle Stick did it." But then I guess I've as good a right to build in my mind as some of your reporters, haven't I?"

Necessity Always Pays the Price

You never knew a man who HAD to have a pair of shoes who did not HAVE TO PAY the full price for that pair of shoes. You never knew a man with an IMMEDIATE DEMAND for a new suit or winter overcoat who didn't have to pay the FULL MARKET PRICE to get them.

Necessity always pays the price.

The way to become rich is to be able to buy beyond your immediate needs and to sell at the climax of the other man's necessities.

Today in all the men's stores there are Clearance Sales going on. Good merchandise is moving at a lower price than it usually does. Good hats and overcoats and suits and shoes have been marked below their standard value.

These sales will be visited by only one class of men. That class is the men who are able to buy beyond their necessities. Men who were able to wait for these necessities until the price broke. And men who are looking even a year ahead in buying their necessities.

It is a mistake to assume that poor people visit Clearance Sales. They don't. They haven't got the money. Necessity is too close to them. Such men had to have a new overcoat, or new shoes, or a new suit two months ago and they got it somehow. But they paid the top price.

The men who are reading the Clearance Sale advertisements in this paper today and who are preparing to go into the stores and lay in a supply of shirts, or socks, or buy extra shoes, or suits, or overcoats, or anything else, are the men who are shrewd enough to wait or the men who are rich enough to meet their necessities a year ahead.

If you are able to take advantage of the remarkable bargains in this paper today, by all means read this advertisement and do so. You will be in good company.

THE HUMAN SIDE OF KITCHENER.

Most people think a piece of iron is a feather bed compared with Lord Kitchener. They imagine that Britain's war minister, the man who runs the whole country, is made of flint and fastened together with steel. To some extent they probably are right, but Kitchener is human nevertheless. Behind the soldier, the disciplinarian, and the calculator, there lies a heart responsive to failings, weaknesses, and strength, just as are all other hearts. The other day a woman who had five sons in the army, was dying. She wanted to see her boys before she went away, and through the kindly offices of the Salvation Army four of the boys went to her bedside and greeted her. But the fifth was at the front and it looked as if the mother would die without seeing him. In the desperation of the moment, a wire was sent to Lord Kitchener. Buck came the reply that if the son could be found he would report. In a little while he was on his way home, and he got there in time to tell his mother good-bye. The war department paid his expenses and allowed him seven days furlough.

Kitchener did this. He gave the matter his personal attention. Through the power of his influence and authority, a dying mother's boy, fighting at the front, went to her side and comforted her in the last moments of her journey.—Romance World-News.

WHEN SPOONER CAME TO PORTSMOUTH.

John C. Spooner, one time senator from Wisconsin, and ranking as one of the ablest men in the legislative body of the nation, was 72 years old Wednesday. Spooner was engulfed in the La Follette wave of curial reform that swept over Wisconsin a few years ago and has since been practicing law in New York, making money and lots of it. He confines himself chiefly to corporation practice. Spooner is an able man and a brilliant orator. It will be remembered that he was sent here once to make a speech the same evening that William Jennings Bryan was here to make an address. If we remember correctly it was during the 1896 battle. Bryan spoke on the lower Market square and Spooner at the opera house and the whole town was on edge lest there be a clash of parsons, so fierce was the feeling engendered over the rival meetings. Everything passed off quietly however, and Bryan had the crowd and the enthusiasm, while Spooner got the overflow.

A "TWO DOLLAR WHEAT" DREAM

BILLY SUNDAY AT PHILADELPHIA.

The Reverend Billy Sunday has started out with a grand rush to save the sinners in Philadelphia, and goodness knows, there are enough there to save. And Philadelphia has taken Billy up as the latest sensation of the day, thousands upon thousands flocking to his sermons. The opening day over 65,000 persons are reported to have heard the evangelist. Philadelphia papers are "playing up" Sunday on as large a scale as do those of the smaller places he has visited while even New York papers have special men covering the meetings. The opening of the campaign is thus described by the New York Sun:

"The fastest base runner the National League ever saw leaped at a bound to the top of a table on the stage of his, Billy Sunday's brand new tabernacle at Nineteenth and Pine streets, this morning, smacked his hands together with a report like a rifle shot and raised his voice to a shriek:

"Come on, you forces of evil in Philadelphia that have made the church a doormat to wipe your dirty feet upon! Come on, you triple extract of infamy! Come on, you assassins of character! Come on, you defamers of God and enemies of His church! Come on, you bull necked, beetle browed, hog jawed, peanut brained, weasel eyed four flushers, false alarms and excess baggage! In the name of Almighty God I challenge and defy you! I'm here for nine weeks. Come on, and I'll deliver the goods, express prepaid!"

"We've got churches, lots of them. We've got plenty of seminaries and they are turning out preachers and putting them into little theological moulds and keeping them there until they get cold enough to practice preaching."

"Why, at Pentecost, one sermon saved 3,000 people. Now it takes 3,000 sermons to get one old, butter-milked, red-nosed, whiskey soaked bunsheener. A fellow came to me and said: 'Billy, the trouble is we need organization in the church.'"

God help us! We're organized too much. There is so much organization in the church that you can hear the machiavelli speak, but we haven't got oil enough of the Holy Ghost to grease one axle of God's chariot."

When Portsmouth sat spell bound under the magic of the art of Billy Sunday such expressions as "beetle browed, hog jawed, peanut brained, weasel-eyed four flushers" seemed as inspired classics to many. Now that the glamor has worn off, we wonder if, in reading the expressions in cold type, a great big question mark does not arise. Compared with the chasteness and the beauty and the humility of the sermons of the Savior, breathing peace and good will, the Sunday sermons do seem just a little, well let us say, strenuous, don't you think?

There is one part of the annual report of Police Chief McCarty that ought to receive serious consideration as soon as sinners will justify and that is his recommendation for a motorcycle policeman. Such a patrolman is needed every hour in the day. The right kind of an officer could cover this town several times a day and the beneficial effect of his presence would be very great.

DODGING THE LIQUOR QUESTION.

The Temperance Committee of the lower house of the legislature will be as dry as a bone. Spokesmen for this committee do not intend to monkey with the buzz saw and work out a plan for decentralizing the liquor traffic. They insist that Governor-elect Willis if he wants any decentralizing done he will have to point the way himself and that if his message does not make specific recommendation it will be fired right back at him for reconsideration. The dry leaders of the house take the attitude that the liquor mix-up is a personal trouble of Governor-elect Willis and Chairman Jones and they do not feel called upon to burn their fingers on someone else's chestnuts.

There's one comfort in a big river anyway. You don't need to get scared every time it is filled with a nickel's worth of ice or it rains a tin cup full like they do up around Dayton where they have a little stream that is about twice the size of Brush Creek, but which gives the town the jim-jams every time there is a cloud in the sky.

WATER WILL NOT INTERFERE

Despite the sudden rise in the Ohio river the Carlyle Brick company will continue to operate its plant near Sciotoville. A force of men have moved its supply pump closer to the plant and work will go on as usual Monday morning.

POCKET BOOK LOST

While in the city Saturday, Catharine Egbert, of Jannsville, lost a pocketbook containing $6. She will greatly appreciate its return to her home.

To Attend Meeting

Ray McElhinney, George Ditty, Leslie Janetzky and Dr. O. H. Tatje left Saturday for Troy, O., to attend a quarterly regional meeting of the Woodmen of the World.

May Open School Here

Miss Estelle Strouse, who formerly conducted a shorthand school in Raleigh, N. C., has practically completed arrangements to open a similar school in Portsmouth. She is a sister of Mrs. Sam Schloss of Ninth street.

No Permit Visible

It was reported to police officials Saturday that the house undergoing repairs at No. 1017 Second street was not supplied with a city building permit.

THE VISIT TO WHEELERSBURG.

The action of a delegation of Portsmouth merchants in making a visit to the agricultural extension school at Wheelersburg was a move in the right direction and it cannot fail to have a most beneficial effect. The interests of the citizens of Portsmouth and those of the county are closely interwoven and what is the concern of one ought to be the concern of all. In the past it may be that Portsmouth has held aloof too much from the things that are of vital moment to the country people, at least there has not been a great deal of effort towards a more harmonious understanding. Realization of this fact has prompted the retail merchants association to determine to do all in its power to bring about a better understanding and this pilgrimage to Wheelersburg is but the forerunner of others to various sections of the county, and it is hoped that much good will result.

In talking over this phase of our local life with a well informed citizen of one of the smaller towns of the county Thursday, he remarked it seemed to him that a great deal of trade was annually lost to Portsmouth by reason of the fact that Portsmouth business men did not have as extensive a personal acquaintance with country people as they should have. By getting about the county, by getting to know the farmers and their families and by getting acquainted with their needs, this man said that he felt certain the volume of business done here would be increased at least $200,000 a year. Where does this business go now? Most of it to the mail order houses, according to our informant who said in his town the mail order catalogue was a conspicuous adornment of a majority of the homes. It would only require a more intimate acquaintance and a thorough presentation of the interdependence of city and country to change all this and to bring this trade to Portsmouth where it belongs, and where it should go were the country people to consult their own best interests.

The recent Korn Carnival started the get-together movement. Let us keep it up and get closer together at every opportunity.

THE SECOND BEST.

(Saturday Evening Post)

Germany probably has the second-best navy. On it she has spent hundreds of millions of dollars, with England especially in mind; but in actual war with England this navy so far has done Germany very little real good. Her merchant ships have been driven from the sea. English transports have carried troops to the French coast at will under her nose.

Half a dozen German cruisers—until they were run down and sunk—caused some furies in marine insurance rates, but their actual injury to British commerce was fairly negligible. England's command of the sea seems virtually as secure as though Germany had no navy.

That is what a poor second best must generally come to—it is like the horse that was just good enough to lose the race. Our navy, matched against England's, would no doubt be virtually worthless. So far as England and her ally, Japan, are concerned, there is no degree of reasonable preparedness short of a fleet that will equal or outclass them both.

We must simply take our chances that there will be no war with them. As circumstances compel us to take some chances on peace, we are willing to take a few more.

"I WANT TO GO THERE."

(The Living Church)

If I had not seen with my own eyes, in the December 5, Henderson, (Ky.) Daily Journal, I would not have believed it! But there, among the Church Notices, I read:

"First Baptist: Afternoon service at three o'clock, especially for old people; subject, 'Mountains On The Road to Hell.' Solo: 'I Want to Go There,' by Mrs. ———."

OLD JEWELRY RESTORED

It frequently happens that a piece of jewelry which has been remodeled to conform to present styles, because of past associations, is more prized than newer creations. If you have old jewelry that has become unsuited for use, either through being broken or out of style, let us submit designs and give you an estimate of the cost of restoring it. In this way you may acquire jewelry of exclusive design and individuality which will be a source of much pleasure and at comparative little cost.

The Markets

SUMMARY OF WEEK'S MARKETS

New York, Jan. 9.—Greater breadth and activity were manifested by this week's stock market, with numerous gains in special stocks. At their best prices leading issues were about midway between the high level of the days which immediately followed resumption of operations and the abrupt declines which marked the liquidating period of that movement.

Much of the week's news was of a constructive character, embracing greater ease of money with the turn of the year, extension of mill operations in steel and iron, a more encouraging view of the general mercantile outlook and a decline in foreign exchange to the latest quotations since the month of 1907. This last development was a direct outcome of the country's improved foreign trade balance. December exports exceeding imports by $110,000,000.

The increasing importance of New York as a financial center was shown by a number of successful underwritings, including the free acceptance of a $6,000,000 Argentine loan and more moderate issue for British Columbia. It is also likely that American bankers may participate in the flotation of the $30,000,000 French treasury notes offered in London.

Of equal significance was the founding of a gold credit at this center by the French government. The investment situation will be put to its real test in the near future when the St. Paul convertible bond issue will be offered. It is understood that several other railroads contemplate now financing and some of the industrial companies are negotiating with banking interests to the same end.

NEW YORK STOCKS

New York, Jan. 9.—Today's two hour session of the stock exchange developed no features of interest. The opening was uneven with a mixture of small gains, but interest soon waned and prices slowly recovered. Canadian Pacific and Baltimore and Ohio fell a point, the latter to within a small fraction of its minimum. Other international shares were fractionally lower. Louisville and Nashville, however, jumped 1½.

U. S. Rubber rose over two points on removal of the British embargo. The closing was irregular.

The market showed no new tendencies in the early dealings which were of the recent small and narrow character. Gains far exceeded declines but in few cases were they more than fractional.

Amalgamated Copper, United States Steel, Reading, and a few other leaders were slightly higher, while Atchison and Southern Pacific lost minor fractions. In the London market Canadian Pacific, steel and Pennsylvania were a trifle better, but other Americans were lower.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Chicago, Jan. 9.—Possibility of a government embargo on wheat exports brought about a flood of selling today in the wheat market here, and caused a quick setback in values. There were also advances that farmers, especially in Kansas, had shown a disposition to let go more freely of reserve stocks. An advance at Liverpool was ignored. So also were dispatches from the seaboard that cable bids for wheat were at the highest prices yet offered by Great Britain. After opening at 7½ to 13½¢, the market here suffered a further sag before beginning to react.

Corn fell with wheat. Commission houses, though some gobbled up the pit supply. Opening prices which ranged from 1½ to 7½¢ down, were followed by a moderate rally.

Oats took the same course as other cereals. Rural acceptances were said to be liberal.

Heavy receipts of hogs prompted for next week tended to pull down provisions. No radical weakness, however, developed.

At The Exhibit "Chasing a Million" is a three-part reel that is being shown at the exhibit tonight. It is a comedy.

"Fired" from his father's ranch for drunkenness, young Harry Wentworth ships aboard a typical "wind-jammer" as able seaman.

Life aboard ship under the rule of a bullying captain, does much to bring-out his latent manhood.

He becomes involved in a fight with the captain, and with two friends escapes from the ship after a sensational "scrim," in which the whole ship's company is engaged.

A long swim to shore and the three friends set out for the elder Wentworth's ranch, where they arrive just in time to prevent the seizure of the old man's property by a rascally lawyer.

A tender little love story adds interest to a tale crammed full of action and excitement.

NATE AND ORLA RICKEY MEET DOWN IN BRADENTOWN, FLA., GET WRITE UP

The Evening Journal of Bradenton, Fla., in a recent issue had the following interesting story about Nate and O. A. Rickey, former well known Portsmouth citizens:

"The 'Rickey Twins' were in town today.

"The 'Rickey Twins,' two of the well known traveling salesmen of Florida always together and always in optimistic mood, are not twins. They are cousins, who played together and tied each other's shirts in Gordian knots on the banks of the Ohio in boyhood days. But these halcyon days, when they went crawling on the holiday afternoons, went glimmering through the dream of things that were. They took to the road as 'angles of commerce'.

"They were but little more than boys when they separated, one of them going west to grow up with the country, and one taking to the blazed trails of commerce in the east. Their experiences, like those of a story book, kept them bustling for years to get bread and oleomargarine to put under their lips. There were times when bread and oleomargarine was very palatable and very scarce, but they just kept whistling to keep up courage and greeted and wooed the world with a smile.

Three months ago, after a separation of years, the 'twins' met accidentally in Bradenton, when Nate came here to sell stogies and O. A. was here representing his coffee house. Each immediately knew the other, because both had retained throughout the vicissitudes of life the sunny smile they wore in the season when 'passion and paw paws' were ripe, when they were boys. Since the time of meeting here they have arranged their territory with a view to covering it together, and are inseparable. They have traveled all over Florida, but declare 'The Land of the Brave' and Bradenton the bright gem of the great domain.

"O. A. Rickey, on the road represents the Tampa Coffee Mills, of Tampa, and Nate is supply the trade with the popular Big Havana and Little Aristocrat stogies. They declare the atmosphere of perpetual optimism in which they move is produced by the particular brands of goods they sell, and that helps some."

Doc Koko's Column

Every Day
(By Ignatius Breunian)
Our eyes are growing dimmer Every day;
Our form is wasting thinner Every day;
With our pulse becoming flatter Every day;
We can't think we'll ever be fatter Every day;
As they raise on beans and batter Every day.

Our tasks are growing lighter Every day;
Our hair grows white and whiter Every day;
Once it used to fall in wavelets Every day;
Now them wavelets lie in gravelets Every day;
Though we used all kinds of wavelets Every day.

Our sporting blood is thinning Every day;
We crave no extra tuning Every day;
And the times that we have roared Every day;
When we'd be about "half snored" Every day;
Have all been rightly chided Every day.

The boys we know in childhood Every day;
And who battled with the wild-wood Every day;
Though there's none of them (anymore) Every day;
They're all doctoring for rheumatics Every day;
From their cellars to their attics Every day.

The kids will be opened at noon Monday and read publicly at the town hall.

BANKERS AND THE AUTOMOBILE INDUSTRY

(By Jasper, Financial Editor of Leslie's.)

Are we giving the automobile business a fair show? Do we appreciate the magnitude of the business? Do we realize that the automobile long since has passed the stage of a luxury and become a utility of the first importance? Do our financial interests have a proper appreciation of this industry? It is time that these questions were answered.

Let me put in a few words the magnitude and meaning of the industry. A million and a half of automobiles are used in the United States. Their cost approximated a billion and a half of dollars. Next year nearly 500,000 cars will be sold and half of them will be sold to farmers, more largely for purposes of utility than for pleasure. There are 15,500 dealers in automobiles in the United States. Our exports of motor cars have risen from a little over 5,000,000 five years ago to $35,000,000 during the past fiscal year. This is how we are selling our automobiles abroad.

Whom does this industry benefit? It is hard to tell where to begin or where to stop. Motor car production during 1914 was somewhat over 400,000 cars, besides motor trucks, and it is estimated that in 1915 the production will be about 500,000 cars. This means the employment of 250,000 men in the automobile factories. If we include the salesman, repair men, garage keepers, advertising men and all others directly dependent upon the automobile itself as a means of livelihood we have somewhat over 400,000 involved. If we add those employed in the tire factories where 5,000,000 tires, approximately worth $100,000,000 are manufactured annually, and add to these the men engaged in other industries producing accessories and attachments for the automobile, we shall have at least a round million of workers.

One automobile company this year used the hides of over half a million cattle for upholstery, so that even the ranching and tanning industries are involved. About 200,000 clocks for automobiles are made every year, and there is scarcely an electric company in the country that does not contribute something to the output of the motor car.

It is not surprising that this industry has become one of the most stable of our manufacturing branches. The public generally, and particularly our financial interests, fail to appreciate the remarkable growth and the stability of the automobile industry. When winter closes up the country roads to automobile traffic, the business of the dealer slackens while that of the manufacturer continues.

If the local agent could buy cars in advance, in fall, and store them until the opening of the spring season, he could make prompt deliveries and the business would have a steadiness it now lacks.

Why should not the local banker who knows the dealer and the responsibility of the purchaser of every automobile make a business loan to the former on the manufactured cars ordered and delivered during the winter months? The local dealer could place the cars in a warehouse, giving a warehouse receipt for same, accompanied by a certificate of insurance. What safer investment for the banker? Thus, during the winter season the local dealer could buy directly from the factory as many cars as were ordered for spring delivery and remit to the manufacturer so that the latter could be provided with funds necessary to increase his business. If this accommodation were granted generally by bankers to dealers a new impetus would be given to the manufacture of automobiles and there would be no slackness in the business.

LOCAL GERMAN'S VIEW OF THE WAR

By Major Lewis F. Korth, Former Editor of The Correspondent

January 8, 1915.

With the new year the great war entered its sixth month, and neither has the Czar taken tea in Berlin nor have the French watered their horses in the Rhine, for which the dates were set last summer already, although we hear that cry, "Out to the Rhine" again in Paris and from little Steinbach in the Vosges hills between Thann and Senheim, about ten miles west of Bismarck, which the French have taken last Tuesday, after leaving it in ashes. The Germans defended the place in a hand to hand combat from house to house but the French artillery in commanding position was too much for them.

The German General Staff considers the capture but adds: "The advance from Steinbach was checked by our successful counter attack at Uffholz (just north of Senheim), they have not dared to attempt further advances. The heights were regained by a night attack."

A new invasion of the Rhine valley was certainly planned by General Joffre as aero scouts report the massing of forces on the Moselle and Meurthe rivers between Belfort and Bruyeres, opposite Colmar, but whether Thann-Senheim is the right strategic starting point for it after the failure of two different former attacks from there on Mulhouse looks doubtful. In August last the Germans drew General Joffre out of the hills and made him take battle in the valley, where he was defeated and the frontier cleared. In the open field the Germans have always proved their superiority.

Now heavy French attacks between Rheims and Chalons, where quiet has reigned for a long time, and at Ypres were repulsed.

Yesterday's war report of the German official press bureau says: "The operations in Alsace progress favorably. We hear from Basel that the French troops on the river Ill have been forced to retire to Belfort. All attempts to use Thann (Senheim) as a basis for an aggressive movement have proved futile. We have repulsed two attacks in force."

This report shows that the French attempted two different movements toward the Rhine valley, one against Mulhouse and another one on the Ill right near the Swiss frontier.

In the East the situation remains satisfactory to the Germans in North and South Poland, and in Galicia it has taken a more favorable aspect for the Austro-Hungarians, as the Russian diversion for the relief of Warsaw has been effectively checked.

Hindenburg's army has made perceptible progress toward Gogolevsk, Warsaw and Ivanograd, the triangular fortress line, against which it is operating. The storming of Borzhom on the junction of the Bzura and Rawa has given them the key to Warsaw, as it commands the road from Lodz to the Polish capital and a wide stretch of the surrounding country. How important it was for the Russians is proved by their obstinate defense and desperate but unsuccessful attempts to retake it. The Germans have advanced already beyond Babinow, from where they are expected to force the Russian lines.

The Germans have fortified their entire line from Sobaczew to Gogolevsk with bombproof emplacements in which the troops have comfortable housing.

The Austrian General Staff says: "The Russian assertion that their advance toward Cracow has been resumed is false. The German and the Austro-Hungarian troops firmly hold all their new positions between the Pilica and Nida, all Russian attacks have been repulsed. Our advance will take place as soon as weather conditions permit. In Western Galicia we have retaken important positions, which the Russians gained with very heavy sacrifices. The heights south of Gorlice, which are of great strategical value, were taken by storm, which brought the Russian advance to a standstill. There is no unfavorable change in the Carpathians. In the battles around Christmas-time we took 12,665 prisoners."

Unofficially Vienna says Hungary is "clear of Russians." Another Vienna despatch says, that the Russians have tried three times in vain to retake the heights of Gorlice. It is the connecting point, the link between the Austrian positions in the Carpathians and their main army, the loss of which would have forced them to retreat again.

"The Turkish campaign in the Caucasus, which has been successful so far, has reached the half-way stone between Kars and Batoum by the occupation of Karadagh." This was the official report of the Turkish general staff. On the other hand the Russians claim that they drove the Turks out of Karadagh again and defeated another column at Sani Kemish in the same region, taking thousands of prisoners.

Ardahan is a fortified town half way between the borderline of Transcaucasia and Persia, its capital. It defends the main pass in the Caucasus mountains.

A late Berlin report of January 7th, says: "In military circles the situation of the Turkish army in the Caucasus is considered favorable." Berlin goes by Constantinople advice. Whether these are more reliable than Petrograd has proved so far remains to be seen. What we know is that the Russians invaded Turkish Armenia at the beginning of the war while the late battles took place on their own territory. The season is very unfavorable for a campaign in the mountain regions, as deep snow makes the roads almost impassable. The Russians behind their fortifications have the best of it in natural advantages.

Three different Turkish armies crossed the Russian border. By latest advice one has taken Uratna, the largest town in Russian Persia, after hard fighting.

Lord Kitchener stated in the British parliament on Wednesday that Turkish troops under German officers were slowly moving to the Suez canal, which contradicts the reports about their failure.

The British are gradually coming to see that the canal is as unsafe for them as the North Sea. Some time ago German papers reported that submarines had been brought over land to the Belgian coast. The destruction of the British 15,000 tons battleship "Pompadour" off Plymouth, the English naval base right in the channel, by a German submarine which was pursued by destroyers but escaped, seems to confirm this. Object of the German admiralty evidently is to hinder operations of the English fleet on the Belgian-French coast and to endanger the troop transport service.

Dunkirk was visited by German aeroplanes a few days ago, which view up the arsenal of Condoverk with large stores of munition. A number of Zeppelins are maneuvering on the French coast.

The Boer revolution in South Africa has been killed half a dozen times in London, but General Botha is still calling for volunteers to fight Colonel Maritz and threatens a general draft of the Boers if they don't come voluntarily to fight their Afrikaner brothers, who whipped his troops at Schietdrift last week.

The military administration of Belgium stigmatizes the reports of imprisonment of Cardinal Mercier and other Belgian priests as malicious falsehoods.

The good services of the United States and of Pope Clemens IX have brought an understanding between the belligerents for the exchange of prisoners unfit for further service about. About 150,000 will benefit by it.

On January 1st the gold reserve of the German Reichsbank by official statement amounted to 2,092,000,000 mark against 1,169,000,000 last year. The German war loan sold at par, the British war loan was quoted at 94 1/2 on the London stock exchange, which was reopened on Monday after five months suspension.

France has placed a new five per cent loan of 50 million dollars in London. A drop in the bucket.

Regarding neutrality. Why are English cablegrams with war stories of column length admitted into the United States without being censored, while every little message from Germany, whether via cable over London or by wireless via Sayville, is held up until it passes the censor?

By advices from Genoa the Italian government has taken effective measures against the forbidden shipment of war material to France.

The Bulgarian Premier, Radoslaw, describes the relations between Bulgaria and Roumania as friendly and says, he has assurances that the latter country will keep out of the war.

The Norwegian government has announced that all floating mines, which drifted to her shores, were English.

The Portuguese have now actively engaged in the war, the eighth dog set upon the Germans, and the littlest one. They have invaded the German territory on the west coast of Africa from their Angola possessions.

The New York Handelszeitung (German Commercial Journal) figures that our export to Central Europe in the first four months of the war alone decreased by 200 million dollars.

Our Southern planters complain that they have for about 800 million dollars worth of cotton tied up which they can't ship, because freight and insurance are ten times higher than they were before the war on account of British restriction and interference. So it is with meat, corn, wheat, copper, coal oil, etc., which are not contraband under international law and therefore not subject to seizure.

The Bavarian prime minister, Count Hertling, says about the error in diplomacy, of which we hear: "It was not made by our leaders, who could not control the conditions confronting us, but by the Allies, who relied on discussions among us (Bavaria against Prussia) and are confounded today by the wonderful unity of all the states and the entire German people, which will give us the victory. A united Germany can never be downed."

In its review of the events of the past year the official organ of the German trades unions (socialistic) says: "We know that we have to hold out and we will hold out. Our confidence does not rest in our power and organization but in our love of country which unites all Germans without exception. No matter how long this bloody war will last it will only weld the nation into greater solidarity and increase her power. The Germans will come out of the war as the strongest of all. As long as we have a crumb we will fight for what we consider right."

In a speech made at the commemoration of the 150th anniversary of the founding of the German Society of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia a few days ago old General Pennypacker, one of the heroes of Gettysburg and a descendant of one of the founders of Germantown, declared England's jealousy of her commercial prestige was one of the main causes of the present world war. "England wages war against Germany just as she did against Holland when that country was mistress of the seas," said the general.

"Fifty years ago we had a mercantile navy. Then our civil war came along and England taking advantage of our situation, drove our commerce from the seas. The Kaiser may be a war lord, but there is a sea lord as well, and the sea lord nearly is more dangerous to us than the war lord

3,000 miles away." His viewpoint, the speaker proclaimed, was a purely American one.

A so-called military writer, not altogether unknown, is attempting a history of General Hindenburg's campaigns. He starts out: "The battle line on Germany's eastern frontier extends 350 miles from Memel on the Baltic sea to Cracow in the far off Carpathian mountains," and has the Russians win all the battles in Prussia, makes them advance to Koenigsberg, Dautzig and Breslau, which he places on the Vistula instead of the Oder, etc. The Russians have at no time been near any of these places. Had the writer taken his school geography to hand he would have saved himself from ridicule. But that is the way history is made. The German General Staff announces that it will soon publish its report of the Eastern campaign. It will convince you that Hindenburg's deeds will go into history as some of the greatest military achievements of all times.

Germany and the Neutrality of Belgium

The "New York Annotated Digest", a publication devoted to jurisprudence and political science, commenting at length on Germany and the neutrality of Belgium says: "In view of the important part which this question has had in the formation of public opinion in America it will be a surprise to many to learn that the German Empire never specifically guaranteed the neutrality of Belgium, was never a party to any treaty relating thereto, and consequently cannot be guilty of having broken a treaty in respect to such neutrality."

The Digest gives the complete history of the neutralization of Belgium and of the subsequent events since that first was done (1831) and comes to the following conclusion: "Under the German constitution of 1871 the empire came into existence free from any treaty obligations of the different German states with foreign countries. Not only was it not bound by their treaties of neutralization, but even Prussia, which was one of the signatories of the London treaty of 1831, ceased to be bound. In fact the treaty as to Prussia terminated ipso facto as a result of the formation of the empire. When a state is absorbed by another all of its treaties are terminated, and when it enters into a federal union, a Bundestadt, as distinguished from a Staatenbund, its political treaties in any event cease to exist, as the identity of the federal state is distinct from that of the units of which it is composed. In 1870, during the Franco-Prussian war, England entered into special but separate treaties with Prussia and France for the observation of Belgium neutrality, which were to remain in force during the then existing war only, and they lapsed after the conclusion of peace."

The views expressed by the author are identical with those of Prof. Burgess and other authorities. Germany at the beginning of the war offered Belgium an alliance and full compensation for the use of her roads, loss of property, etc., but Belgium had thrown her lot with the allies. (By the military convention of 1906.) She did not accept and backed up her refusal by force. Luxembourg, which was in the same position as Belgium, but remained strictly neutral, suffered neither loss of life nor property and has received full indemnity. Has any one yet heard of China receiving an indemnity from either Japan or England for the invasion of her Shantung province by the Japanese army in their campaign on Kiao-Chau and the violation of her neutrality?

DRINK HOT TEA FOR A BAD COLD

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea, or as the German folks call it, "Hamburger Brust Tee," at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teaspoon full at any time. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking a cold at once. It is expensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless.

Back From Cincinnati

Jacob Finkels has returned from Cincinnati, where he attended the funeral services of the late Mrs. Frank Hegner, whose husband is well known in Portsmouth.

One of the events of the season in a fraternal way was the public installation exercises held Friday evening by the local Tribe of Ben Hur in their hall at Fifth and Chillicothe streets. The attendance was gratifyingly large and the evening was fraught with pleasure. A short program was rendered after the installation exercises in which Miss Nell Reisinger, John Devor, Miss Cora Davis and the Ben Hur Quartet took part. The evening's festivities were closed with a banquet, which was served in faultless style. The following officers were inducted into office: Past Chief, Jaucinth Womack; Chief Charles A. Spratt; Judge, George Emrich; Teacher, Cora Davis; Scribe, Thos. McLaughlin; K. of T., Frank Hartgrove; K. of O. G., William Messner; K. of L. G., Mrs. Hoyt Pauden; N. of G., Charles Bowser; Aris, Charles Miller and Hubli Joseph, Joseph Demint; Captain, William Messner; Guide Fred Hasselmann, and Trustee, Hoyt Pauden.

GAME NEXT WEEK
Tuesday evening, Ivory Knobs vs. Cement Specialists, alleys 2 and 3.
Tuesday evening, Giant Killers vs. Corn Shuckers, alleys 4 and 5.
Friday evening, Spiders vs. Bald Eagles, alleys 2 and 3.
Friday evening, Rexalls vs. Clod Hoppers, alleys 4 and 5.

With a crash and a bang that still has the spectators bewildered, those Rexalls under the captaincy of George (Cronje) Wurster, made the Nodder Spiders take to the tail and uncut at the Play House alleys, Friday evening, stopping their onward rush like a flood wall, bringing to halt a runaway horse. Losing the first game by the narrow margin of one pin, those Rexalls came back with all sorts of viciousness and grabbed off the next two in apple pie order, leaving the Spiders scattered over unexplored territory, all wondering where they were "at." It was such a jolt that Captain Nodder and his chief golfer, Dr. Mylinger, are unable yet to locate their bearings but searching parties have been sent out for them and it is hoped to bring them back to normal by the time the next conflict is staged.

The Bald Eagles after allowing the Corn Shuckers to nibble off the first game, came back with all sorts of viciousness and managed to hang up the next two to their credit. No wonderful scores were made, William Briggs, lead off man for the Corn Shuckers, being the only player to back in the sunshade of select society, gathering 212 in his first game. "Chuck" Harsha, who was used as a Rexall last night, came within three pins of getting into the charmed circle, winning the ash for 197. Captain George Wurster rolled one of the prettiest games ever seen on the alleys, when he spared in every frame during his second game, good for a 173 score. This game was the personification of experience and skill and Captain Wurster showed conclusively that he was there in a pinch. P. E. Selby, of the Bald Eagles, had a sparkling good night, two his games being away out yonder. He started his good work right from the jump, gathering 175 as a starter. He fell down in the middle game, but came back strong in No. 3 and hung up the splendid score of 187. Dr. Selby got into the limelight in his third game for the Rexalls, totalling 132 and a little touch luck kept him from entering select society. Sam McDaniel, who made his debut as a Bald Eagle, hit "er up" in his first game, pulling down 161. William Briggs, of the Corn Shuckers, had the best evening of all players, and is now back to his old form.

The honor of making the low score of the league fell to Ralph Struch, who worked out for the first time in his life under the colors of the Bald Eagle. Try as he did, he could not get going and brought up with the magnificent effort of 63. Wade Kennedy, James Hager, George Freund and a host of others, congratulated him most heartily. Ralph laid off a game in order to recover from his hard earned efforts and then came back like a genuine thoroughbred, reaping the large sum of 135. All

Zowie, Honus Wagner Wears White Collar

There was a tremendous sensation over in Pittsburgh the other day. Did Barney Dreyfus buy a drink? Did some one dig up an honest politician in Smoketown's New. Honus Wagner sauntered down street with a white collar, a real blown-in-the-bottle collar on. Pittsburgh looked on in amazement. There was but one conclusion, Honus is either looking for a wife or he is figuring on landing a soft snap when his diamond career ends.

WHERE REAL ABILITY COUNTS

Form in sport is too often a sandy dwelling built upon a foundation of sand. And the average non-combatant often has queer ideas of what constitutes real worth.

"Through the campaign of 1914 the most valuable ball player in America for 151 games—the long route—was Edward T. Collins of Millerton, N. Y., and Philadelphia, Pa. Collins led all ball players in batting and he led all major league ball players in runs scored, runs driven in, and in addition to this, was the brightest defensive star in baseball's sky.

Then, in a short four-game series for the world championship, Collins' team is beaten, and he does only fair work. The spotlight is immediately shifted from Collins to Jack Gowdy and others who were not within forty leagues of the Macklin journey over the long road—the distance that completes the ultimate test.

Only fair, average ball player may be a radiant wonder in a four or a six-game series. In this same series any star may be a quince of magnitude. But only a great ball player can operate a leading role from April through mid-October. Yet, the average ball player who stars in a few World Series games is awarded the chaplet of olive through the Winter League, while the 151 games star is forgotten.

Fame gathered beneath the shifting glow of the elusive spotlight is well enough. But fame won over the long road should have a triple call over the other, which it very often does not.

Huntington Books Thanksgiving Game

Anniversary Battle

Battling Nelson is in New York City trying to get a promoter there to arrange a bout between himself and Ad Wolgast on February 25. It is the fifth anniversary of the day he lost his title to the Cadillac boy, but Bat still thinks he can win his more youthful conqueror.

SECOND START OF TWO MACKS

McGraw of the Giants arrayed a powerful pennant machine in 1903. In 1905 it crumpled around him, and he needed six years to build another. In 1911 the giant leader finally started another winning legion under very favorable conditions.

Mack, too, had a pennant winner in 1909. In 1906 he also watched his machine buckle up, and five years were needed to build a new and victorious battalion.

There were strong signs this last season that both the Giants and the Athletics were skidding again, ready for another dismemberment. The first were beaten in their pennant fight; the others were overthrown in their world championship stand. So both Mack and McGraw are planning to toss new blood into their casts for next April's start. Both will have the strongest sort of competition, as Boston alone can furnish two powerful machines, and there are other rivals on

THE SPORTING CAPITAL

Washington, D. C., may be the capital of this more or less energetic action. But it's sporting capital is now located at Boston, Mass.

This season alone Boston has won the football championship, the football championship, and the amateur golf championship. In the last three years she has won three football championships, two world's series championships, the open golf championship, and the amateur golf crown.

In this year sporting capital the cabinet in the main is composed of George Stallage, Percy Houghton, and Francis Oumel. Which, for combined efficiency, is just a trifle better than any that Washington has ever known.

AMERICAN ATHLETES EXCEL

According to Harry Hillman, athletic trainer at Dartmouth College it will be fully twenty years before any European nation can hope to compete successfully against the American athlete. Hillman, a famous runner and member of Olympic teams in his competition days, stated that in his opinion the European war and the advanced training system and methods in vogue in America formed handicaps that would prevent the foreign athlete from reaching the general standard maintained in this country for a score of years at least.

"BILLY" SUNDAY DECLARES FOR ORGANIZED BASEBALL

STARTED TOO LATE

It is feared that the Federal League suit to free all players from their contracts under the national commission has been started just one year too late. Most players of note have been signed to personal contracts in the last six months and the contract bears no reference to the national agreement.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 8.—Billy Sunday, the evangelist and former diamond star, was asked for an interview today on the baseball situation. He seemed elated that the opportunity was to be given him to get off his chest, as he said, a matter that, next to his religion, was to his mind most important.

"I want to say right at the jump off that I haven't a particle of use for the Federal League, and I am opposed to the methods it has employed to get players. I haven't the slightest objection to any body of men starting a league, but when they do so they should develop their own players, and not take them from another organization, the way that the Federal League did and is still trying to do.

"It's all right for them to start a league of their own, but the Federal League has no right to break up what other men have spent years of labor and thought and lots of money to build. They are simply tearing down what others have constructed."

"You believe in organized baseball?" he was asked.
"Yes, sir," snapped Sunday. "Organization is necessary in baseball, the same as it is in everything else. When you do away with organization in baseball you are going to break up the game."

"The reserve clause is necessary to the very life of baseball. Do away with the reserve clause, which permits a club to hold onto a player after it has found and developed him, and you won't have much sap left in the baseball tree."

"Would Plank, Bender and others have been the great pitchers that they are if they had not been carefully coached and developed? Without the reserve clause they would have had the right to quit the Athletics whenever they desired, and there would have been no incessary to train them and bring them to the point of greatest efficiency."

"You can say for me that if the baseball player isn't careful he will kill the game by jumping his contract just because he is offered a little more money."

"I blame the players for the present condition of affairs. They should stick to the fellow who helped them to get where they are. Lots of them are 'lemons' when they get into a league. Eddie Collins was a

'lemon' when he broke in with the Athletics. But Connie Mack took him in hand, taught him a lot of things about batting, base-running and fielding, shifted him from one position to another, was patient with him, and Eddie became one of the greatest stars in the history of the game."

"If they knock out organized baseball I'm certain that Wagner, Ward and the other Federal Leaguers will cut salaries until the players won't know their pay checks."

A large attendance is anticipated at all services the coming Sabbath, especially do we urge every member of the Sabbath school to be on hand, for by so doing you will help us to reach the mark set for the next month, viz: five hundred regular attendants.

At the morning service the pastor will preach a most timely and helpful sermon from the subject, "Brooks in the Way." You will go home with the conscious assurance that you are a better man or woman for having heard this address. Especially if your Christian life and experience are not all you would have them to be, will this sermon be helpful to you.

Subject of the evening sermon, "The Master Call of the Master." We are in great need of faithfulness in attendance upon the part of all our membership as regards these Sunday evening services. The best place of all to begin preparation for our coming revival meeting is right here. Let's all help to start a crowd coming to church. The little you can do, and the little that all the rest of us can do, will, all added together, make a great deal and count for much. So do your little.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

Lesson II.—First Quarter, For Jan. 10, 1915.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Judg. iv, 4-16.

Memory Verses, 14, 15—Golden Text, Ps. xxiv, 17—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

The one great aim of God in His word is that we may know Him and let Him through us make Him known to others, those who will not read His word being able to read Him in our lives. For that end He chose Israel and brought them into His land that they might be unto Him a kingdom of priests, ministering unto Him and blessing in Him their inheritance (Ex. xix, 4-6; 1 Sam. vii, 23; Ps. cxviii, 20). The end of the story, after centuries of failure on man's part, will be that Israel shall know Him as never before, and all nations shall know Him through Israel (Ezek. xxxviii, 21, 22, 23; xxxix, 7, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 55, 56, 57, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 63, 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 71, 72, 73, 74, 75, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80, 81, 82, 83, 84, 85, 86, 87, 88, 89, 90, 91, 92, 93, 94, 95, 96, 97, 98, 99, 100).

In all the past history of the world since Adam sinned, whether before the call of Abram or since the birth of Israel as a nation or during the present age of gathering a people for His name from all nations, those who have known Him have been comparatively few, the vast majority doing what seemed right in their own eyes, which is always wrong in the eyes of the Lord (Judg. iii, 7, 12; iv, 1; xvii, 6; xxi, 25).

The Lord is always looking over the whole earth to find any one who is whole hearted for Him, who will walk before Him and be sincere, as He exhorted Abram to do (1 Chron. xvi, 6; Gen. xvi, 1). To that end He is ever proving His people to see if they will turn to Him alone or to their own thoughts and ways (Deut. x, 2, 3, 16; Judg. ii, 22; iii, 1, 4; 1 Sam. ix, 8, 9), and His cry ever is, "Oh, that my people had heeded unto me and Israel had walked in my ways!" (Isa. lxxxi, 18).

So full of compassion is He that when people are in trouble because of their sin if they turn to Him with the whole heart He hears them and sends deliverance (Judg. ii, 16; iii, 9, 15, 31). The rest which He gave Israel from then to time (chapter iii, 11, 30) might have been theirs all the time if they had not turned to their own ways.

Our lesson today shows us the Lord delivering by the hand of a woman, Deborah, the prophetess, and also using another woman who feared God more than man and preferred to stand with God at any cost, Jael, the wife of Heber, the Kenite (chapter iv, 4, 5, 17, 21). Let the sisters note for their encouragement the stories of Huldah, the prophetess; Phinehas, the teacher; the daughters of Philip, the host of women who publish the word of God and those women laborers in the gospel whose names are in the book of life (1 Kings xiii, 14; Acts xviii, 26; xxi, 8, 9; Ps. lxxviii, 11, 12; Phil. iv, 3). Let the brethren be better believers than Hagar, who said that he would not go unless Deborah went with him (verses 8, 9). Yet Hagar is mentioned among the men of faith in Heb. xi, 10, how great is the grace of God, which uses such weak ones as we are and gives us credit for what He Himself does in and through us.

Note in lesson, verses 7, 14, 15, 23, that it was the Lord's victory and deliverance, and not they sang of it in chapter v, 2, 3. There was just one thing that Israel did that was worth mentioning—they willingly offered themselves (verses 2, 9), and this reminds us of 1 Chron. xxi, 9, 17; 1 Chron. xxi, 10; 1 Chron. xxi, 12; Ex. xxi, 2, xxxv, 29, and of the question in 1 Chron. xxi, 3. There were some who came not at all to help, and a curse was pronounced upon them (verse 21). What about the many professing Christians today who do nothing whatever to help deliver the oppressed from the power of the enemy? May there be great searchings of heart (verses 15, 16) and a readiness to say, "Thy servants are ready to do whatsoever my Lord the King shall appoint." "For any manner of service . . . wholly at thy commandment" (1 Sam. xv, 15; 1 Chron. xxviii, 21). Some jeopardized their lives unto the death, as did three of David's mighty men and as we are commanded to do (verse 18; 1 Sam. xxxii, 17; Rev. ii, 10).

The saying in chapter v, 12, "Lead thy captivity captive," makes us think of Ps. lxxviii, 18; Eph. iv, 8, and of Him of whom all deliveries were the faintest foreshadowings. The desire that those who love Him should be as the sun when he goeth forth in his might (verse 31) makes us think of the great morning of victory, when He shall finally deliver Israel, make wars to cease and the righteous shall shine forth as the sun (1 Sam. xiii, 3, 4; Ps. xvi, 6, margin; 9; Mat. iv, 2; Matt. xli, 43). Then shall all the enemies of the Lord perish and the kingdoms of this world shall become the kingdom of the Lord Jesus Christ, and there shall be rest everywhere (Ps. cii, 15, 16; Rev. xxi, 15, 18; xxi, 1-6). Our Lord is still calling for followers, for such as will love Him more than all others, or even their own lives. He is saying, "Whom shall I send, and who will go for me?" and He will gladly welcome all who willingly say: "Here am I. Send me." (Isa. vi, 8).

The present European conflict will probably lead to the recognition of Israel as a nation. We are seemingly at the beginning of the end of the times of the gentiles.

Princess Patricia's regiment, largely composed of men who have seen previous service, entrained yesterday for Southampton where they embarked for a French port. They are to be followed by the Scottish regiments of the contingent and later by other units, some of which have been attached to British regiments.

REV. CRAYTON S. BROOKS TO PREACH AT DAYTON O. EDITOR LAPPIN IS COMING

Rev. Crayton S. Brooks, minister of the First Christian church, left Saturday for Dayton, Ohio, where on Sunday he will fill the pulpit of the Central Christian church of the Gen. City. He expects to return on Monday and prepare for a two weeks revival which will hold in this city, and which has been postponed for one week, due to the fact that the services of an expert song leader could not be secured. It is likely that a vocalist from New York City will have charge of the singing during the revival. He is highly recommended and Rev. Brooks was in telegraphic communication with him shortly before he left for Dayton.

S. S. Lappin, editor of the Christian Standard, of Cincinnati, will fill the place of Rev. Brooks at the First Christian church on Sunday. This means that Editor Lappin will teach the big adult class at Bible school, and all who have seen him in this role can vouch for the statement that a splendid session is bound to mark the Bible study hour. Editor Lappin is a man of pleasing personality, a scholar of high rank and a thorough Christian gentleman, and he will be given a most cordial greeting at all sessions. Pre-dictions are freely made by the enthusiastic members of the Loyal Men's Bible class that their attendance will go beyond the century mark. And by the way, the Loyal Daughters declare they will be in the same circle.

Superintendent Charles M. Howland, who has been absent for two weeks returned from New York City, Saturday, and will be back at the helm with all sorts of enthusiasm which he has picked up in the effort East. He is anxious to see as big a crowd at Sunday school as he gazed at on Fifth avenue, and believes his anxiety will be realized. You be one of the crowd.

Returns From East.

Mr. A. A. Aards, who has been visiting his old home at Omar, Delaware, expects to return to-day. He will resume his work.

THE BROTHERHOOD CLASS

Just a word in your ear. Do you attend a Bible Class? If you do not we would be very glad to see you at the Brotherhood Class which meets at nine o'clock on Sunday morning in the office of the Rector of All Saints' church. If we did not think you would enjoy being present we would not ask you to come. The class lives up to its title. The atmosphere is brotherly. And we are doing good, solid work in the field of biblical research too. The discussion at every session are proving mutually helpful. The average man is called upon from time to time to hear what he considers to be unjust treatment. The lesson on Sunday will cover this ground for it is on the topic of "Bearing Injustice Bravely." Pay us a visit on Sunday. You may be able to help your brother by your counsel and advice and he may be able to help you.

Revival Continues

Interest in the revival being conducted in the South Portsmouth M. E. continues on the increase as another fine audience heard Rev. Wm. Given last evening when he spoke on "Seeking Jesus." The revival will continue over Sunday. The services Sunday will be conducted at 10 a. m., 2:30 p. m., and at 7:15 p. m.

Solomon B. Freehof Receives Call From Local Congregation

At a congregational meeting at the Jewish Temple, Friday night, a call was formally extended to Solomon B. Freehof to act as rabbi during the year of 1915. Mr. Freehof has been offered a professorship in the Hebrew Union College of Cincinnati unofficially and if he is tendered the position he will accept it and this will permit him to come to Portsmouth to hold weekly services in the Jewish Temple. If the offer is not made to him he will be unable to accept the call extended to him last night as he will look around for a larger congregation. Mr. Freehof has been coming to Portsmouth for several months and his services have been enthusiastically satisfactory to the local Jewish congregation.

Interest Grows In Special Services

Interest increases in the special services that are being conducted at the First Presbyterian church by the pastor, Rev. J. W. Dunning, the attendance Friday evening being the largest during the series. Special music was furnished by the church quartet, consisting of Miss Ella Berry, Mrs. Charles Storck, Mr. Harry Boyd, and Mr. William H. Schwartz, while H. P. Kinsey led the congregational singing.

Rev. Dunning chose for his subject, "The Program of the Christian Life," the sermon being a continuation of his series dealing with Christ's retreat of one week with His disciples during His earthly ministry.

No service will be held Saturday evening, but the Sunday evening service will be included in the series of special meetings, which will continue for the first three evenings of next

WAR IS-- What Sherman Said It Was

THESE are war times. Everybody is talking war. War is all that Sherman said it was, yet folks still fight and the sound of martial music still makes the blood run faster.

There are victories of peace, we are told, and there are warfares in the times of peace. Not warfares fought with guns and swords and dreadnaughts and Zeppelins but warfares just the same. There are struggles for truth and moral courage and honesty. Fights for the betterment of the world, not for its destruction. Warfare for the right, for cleanliness, for all that is best.

There are fights that folks little realize, made to build up a reputation for honest business and to maintain that reputation by constant care, eternal vigilance against deterioration and a constant fight against imitation and dishonesty and cheapening.

Such a fight has been made in the leather world for years by the makers of HANAN SHOES.

Never has the battle lagged for a moment. Always these products are guarded against any lowering of quality, against anything that would for a moment blanch the reputation built up for them and which rests business success. That's why you may be sure of yourself when you buy Hanan Shoes.

EXPENSE AND INCOME OF HOSPITAL LOWER

Miss Helen Lowe, superintendent of Hempstead hospital, Friday made her monthly settlement with the city depositing $426.35 collected from patients during December.

From the comparative figures appended below it will be seen that the total receipts for the year are $300 less than in 1913 but the expenditures are less for an equal amount.

The collections for this year are surprisingly good when the business depression is considered, then too, the hospital authorities claim there is a lack of proper co-operation on the part of some physicians. There are some physicians who are working in harmony with the authorities and doing all they can to make the hospital a self-sustaining institution but as much can not be said for others, officials claim.

A tax levy must be provided to make up the difference in receipts and expenditures which is $4,686.79. Following is a detailed statement of the figures:

MEN KILLED HOGS; GIRLS GROUND SAUSAGE; ORCHESTRA PLAYED, CIDER DRUNK, AND DANCE ENJOYED

The hog-killing and dance held at the home of Mrs. Emma Vernier in Pond Creek, Thursday night was an enjoyable affair, fully 100 persons attending.

While the butchering of porkers was left to the strong arms of the sterner sex the young women present did their share of work by grinding sausage. Six hogs were dressed at 1650 pounds.

All work ended the young people tripped the light fantastic to the inspiring strains of a string orchestra composed of Shirley Millard, Tom Malone and Sam Welcher, while selections by a quartet composed of Elza Callender, Frank Duplain, Wilbur Brant and George Crull added to the delights of the evening was one proved a delightful feature.

Will Vernier was master of ceremonies and contributed much to the success of the entertainment. Cider and other refreshments were served. Among Portsmouth persons present were Misses Emma and Clara Fricke, Mrs. Elza Callender, Wilbur Brant and George Crull.

Wealthy Alaskan Bachelor In City

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Burgraf, of Melbourne, are entertaining an interesting guest in Fred Laubner, a former Senator, now a wealthy contractor and gold mine operator of Stewart, Alaska.

It is Mr. Laubner's first visit to his native home in seventeen years and he expects to remain for at least three months. His brother, Joseph Laubner, also a gold mine operator of Alaska, was here two years ago on the hunt of a wife and became engaged to a young woman at Melbourne but they were never married. As Fred, too, is a bachelor a suspicion is arising that he might be here on a similar mission.

MR. SCUDDER ENDORSED BY THE MOTHERS' CLUB

Members of the Mothers' Club of the lower Fourth street school building went on record unanimously, at their monthly meeting Friday afternoon, in favor of the re-election of George D. Scudder as a member of the board of education and pledged themselves to support him at the polls. They also indicated that they would recommend his candidacy to the women voters of the city. Mr. Scudder, they maintain, has always manifested close interest in the welfare of the schools, and of the pupils, and is deserving of their support.

It also developed at the meeting that the club will favor the candidacy of a woman as a member of the board at the coming election. The terms of three of the members expire next January and they feel that one of the places should go to a woman. It was the consensus of opinion that a mother should be a candidate. The matter was left open until the next meeting, at which time the members will center upon a candidate, and recommend her to the support of other clubs in the city, as well as that of the male voters. It is understood that the choice of the club lies between Mrs. W. H. Schwartz and Mrs. S. Cole Peabody.

A petition, asking the board of education to install a bath tub in the lower Fourth street building, was signed by all present and submitted to the board Friday evening. It was represented that the work can be done cheaper now than at any other time as the plumbers are at work in the building, making other improvements. The club considers the bath tub as a necessity.

The members also decided to devote the surplus in the treasury to the purchasing of clothes and wearing apparel for needy school children, and Mrs. Bruce Hooper and Miss Bessie Smith were named as a committee to look after the buying.

Dr. Harry A. Schirrmann made a brief address to the members, in which he gave valuable advice concerning the proper care of school children. He also warmly complimented the club for the good work it has done in the past and expressed the hope that the present year would be even more fruitful of results.

After the business session was over, light refreshments were served, which was made more enjoyable by an entertaining Viennese concert.

Mrs. Sarah Townsend, of Bloom Switch, underwent a surgical operation at the Hempstead hospital Friday.

LADIES! SECRET TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Bring back color, gloss and thickness with Grandma's recipe of Sage and Sulphur.

Common garden sage brewed into a decoction, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant; removes every bit of dandruff, stops itching and falling hair. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, called about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as "Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of fuss.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Weyth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.

EVEN CROSS, SICK CHILDREN LOVE SYRUP OF FIGS

Don't scold your fretful, peevish child. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with sour waste. When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach ache, indigestion, diarrhoea, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the food waste, the sour bile and fermenting food passes out of the bowels and you have a well and playful child again. Children love this harmless "Fruit Laxative," and mothers can rest easy after giving it, because it never fails to make their little "insides" clean and sweet.

Keep it handy, Mother! A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the label. Remember there are counterfeits sold here, so surely look and see that yours is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.

Wants Statistics On Income From The Waterworks

In keeping with his policy of obtaining a better line on the water works department's income Mayor Frick on Saturday addressed the following letter to Clerk D. E. Edwards:

January 9, 1915.

Mr. Dear Mr. Edwards: The office directs that you prepare, without delay, and deliver to Mr. Wm. Gergens, director of Public Service, who has charge of the Waterworks, a detailed report with reference to the receipts from the following local institutions:

Manufacturing Plants—Such as shoe, brick, ice, lumber, foundries, knitting mills, and others. Not omitting those equipped with automatic sprinklers, and those using gas engines.

Commercial Institutions—Such as wholesale establishments equipped with elevators and automatic sprinklers, bank and office buildings, laundries, livery barns, dyehouses.

Mercantile Establishments—Such as department stores equipped with automatic sprinklers and elevators, groceries, butchers, etc.

Public Service Corporations—Such as railroads, steam and electric, gas and telephone.

As well as report the water rent these are scheduled for and the collections made from all such, and a complete and detailed report on all delinquents for the past ten years.

The department is very anxious to put this plant on a sustaining basis without, if possible, disturbing consumers who have always paid regularly and about what such service is worth. It is possible that if we can collect the delinquents with penalties, that no great change need be made in the general plan of rates and schedules.

The necessity for this report arises owing to a better public service, at the actual cost of furnishing such.

With respect,
Mayor.

BANKRUPTCY PETITION IS FILED BY DYDYNski

An echo of the recent big wind-storm at Buena Vista is seen in the following from the Cincinnati Enquirer:

"A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in the United States District Court yesterday by Francis J. Dydynski, a motor boat operator, of 2991 West Sixth street. He schedules liabilities at $12,125.55 and assets at $250. His largest secured creditors are W. E. Tripp, of South Webster, Ohio, $15.84, and Leonard Dydynski, Buena Vista, Ohio, $562. The petition lists a wrecked gasoline boat and two barges as his only assets, besides his household goods. The claim of Tripp represents the purchase price of the gasoline boat."

THE LIVER REGULATES THE BODY—A SLUGGISH LIVER NEEDS CARE

IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Take a glass of Salt to flush out your Kidneys and neutralize irritating acids.

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and in very profuse quantity, there is difficulty in voiding it. Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salt from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again. Jad Salt is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the salt of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salt is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.

School Board's Attitude On Auditorium Discussed

Portsmouth, O., Jan. 8, 1915.
Editor Daily Times—Permit me through the columns of your paper to express my surprise at the action of the Board of Education last evening in refusing permission to the Building Trades Council to hold a lecture in the High School Auditorium on Sunday afternoon for the benefit of the unemployed workers of the city.

Now, in regards to the excuse which the Honorable Board offers, that it is not the custom of the board to have any lectures in the auditorium on Sunday, we would like to ask, "what difference would it make to the auditorium if the lecture (which is to be held to help the unemployed in this city) would have been held on Sunday or any other day?"

Are not the proceeds of the lecture to be given to a worthy cause? Can there be a more worthy act than to help the needy? Is it against the laws of God and man to do a kind act on Sunday? or is it more holy than the deed? If such be the case, let us throw away the new Testament and go back to the old.

We do not believe the real reason of the board in refusing the Council permission to hold the lecture on Sunday was to keep the Sabbath day holy, but of prejudice against organized labor. This act of the board has clearly proven that the city of Portsmouth needs men of the working class to represent them in the different city departments and we hope that at the next mayoralty election the union men of this city will awaken to the fact that they have no chance to receive any favors from the various boards in the city, except they are represented by their own class.

To give the general public the clear facts, the writer wishes to state that the subject on which Mr. Klein is to lecture is his experience during his travels through the European war zone. The proceeds over and above expenses to go towards helping the most needy unemployed workers in the city, and we are sure that if Mr. Howe, or any other lecturer who makes a living by showing moving pictures of his travels in different parts of the world would have come here and asked the board for the Sunday use of the auditorium for the same purpose, under the auspices of an organization other than a labor organization, they surely would have been granted the privilege. We have approached working men, business men, doctors, lawyers, public officials, in fact all classes of society on the subject of giving the lecture for this purpose, and they are all unanimous in the opinion that the proper place to give such a lecture for such a cause was the auditorium, and we hope that the union men of Portsmouth, when the proper time comes, will not forget how they were treated by the school board on Friday, Jan. 8th, 1915.

American Weddings Scarce In London

London, Jan. 8.—American weddings are now very rare and the usual number of holiday weddings among Americans traveling in England will be lacking. There are few Americans in England now outside of the regular colony, and furthermore, the Church of England has shown a disposition to discourage the issuance of licenses to non-residents who desire to waive the formality of church regulations and have a license granted without the rendering of banns and other preliminary which consume at least two weeks.

At one time Americans were much given to seeking these special licenses and arranging weddings in great haste. The Bishop of Canterbury grants such licenses to Englishmen only when there are urgent reasons, such as illness or unexpected military or naval orders which would make it impossible to comply with the church's regular requirements.

In the case of Americans, no other foreigners desiring to marry in England, the same consideration will be shown in an extreme emergency which is shown to Englishmen, but the church has made very clear its unwillingness to issue special licenses simply because the parties to the marriage do not want to comply with the regular requirements.

Therefore insist on your druggist giving you GOLD MEDAL—otherwise you may get an imitation. Price 25c, 50c and $1.00. Money refunded if they do not help you. Look for the name GOLD MEDAL on every box.

A case which came to the writer's notice is probably typical of many. A young woman who was accustomed to dine with her brother, a newspaper man, at a restaurant largely patronized by men of that profession, has appeared nightly at the restaurant alone ever since her brother was called to join his regiment, and inquired if his co-workers had heard anything of him. From a wounded comrade who returned to Paris they learned that the girl's brother was killed more than two months ago, but none of the men has had the heart to break the news to the sister.

There are also thousands among the 6,000,000 school children of France, most of whose fathers are in the army, who have failed to learn the true answer to their repeated queries during the holiday season: "Why doesn't papa come home?"

The answer probably cannot be given in a majority of cases until the publication of the full lists of losses, which, however, has not yet been decided upon by the French government.

We Sell An Alarm Clock that is seven times better than the average. You may think this statement pretty strong, but here are the facts.

This clock runs a week and alarms a week with one winding. Others have to be wound every night. It is seven times less annoying, seven times more convenient. A touch of a button shuts off the alarm. It is so attractive in appearance and the dial and hands so easy to read that it can be used in any room.

And this seven times better clock costs only $3.00.

Belgian Cardinal Accused of Over- Stepping Authority

CARDINAL MERCIER

London, Jan. 8.—A dispatch from Berlin, via Amsterdam, says that the report that Cardinal Mercier, of Belgium, has been arrested by the German authorities has been met with complete disfavor on the part of German Catholics. Cardinal Mercier is supposed to have been accused of advising Belgians to refuse to give allegiance to the German administration. The leaders of the Catholics in Germany, it is said, openly express the opinion that the arrest of the prelate was an unpardonable blunder.

GERMANY RESUMES VIOLENT CAMPAIGN WEST OF WARSAW

SITUATION CRITICAL IN AUSTRIA-HUNGARY

London, Jan. 9.—Coincident with their new movement from the north, the Germans have resumed their violent offensive operations to the west of Warsaw. They are hacking their way forward at some points, only to be in turn driven out from their positions by Russian bayonet attacks. This leaves the situation in Poland as a whole about what it was a fortnight ago.

Meanwhile the Russians sweep through the Austrian crownland of Bukovina continues unchecked, according to news dispatches reaching London, and this army is expected by British observers soon to be well over the mountains forming the boundary into Hungary.

Serbia, with her army more or less rehabilitated, is described in London as attacking the dual monarchy from the south with renewed vigor. Austria declares that the latest Serbian attempts have been repulsed. Nevertheless evidence is given in England to the reports that Germany is planning to throw troops to the assistance of her ally in a third attempt to crush the country of the Serbs. One hundred thousand Russians and three hundred thousand Austrians, it is said, are to be employed in this campaign. The Tenth Army, however, such a move imperative, in view of the grave situation in the Balkans.

Look To Eastern
Army For Developments
The present position of Austria-Hungary, according to observers who today are giving expression to their views, is most critical. Threatened from the east and from the south and with Rumania preparing to cut her lot with the allies, the war is being brought to her front door. This is in sharp contrast to the comparative isolation from strife which Germany continues to enjoy with only small strips of territory in east Russia and Alsace occupied by her antagonists. Now more than ever before, therefore, followers of the conflict in England look to the eastern arena for immediate developments of importance.

French Warfare Will Continue In the West

In Belgium and France the allies are making some hard earned gains and the Germans are also making progress. The opposing forces are so nearly evenly matched and the positions of their trenches is such that sapping and bomb throwing must be relied on chiefly to bring any gains and barring a lucky victory in the sporadic artillery duels this form of warfare doubtless will persist along the line in Flanders and in France until the weather improves the ground and permits more extensive infantry operations.

Several days have passed since the first reports of Russian victories over the Turks in the Caucasus, but the Turks have not admitted any reverses in the territory.

AUSTRIAN ARMY CAUGHT IN TRAP

Geneva (via Paris), Jan. 9.—The Austrians have been caught in a trap skillfully set by Generals Ruzsky and Ivanoff, according to advices from a Hungarian source received here without first passing through the hands of the Austrian censor.

In conformity with the Russian plan, the advices say, the Austrian columns, pushing toward the Nida river found themselves stopped by dangerous marshy ground. At the same time the Russians attacking Cracow suddenly abandoned their original plan but resumed their attack in a totally unexpected manner.

With the Russian army occupying the most important positions of the Carpathians from the side of Bochnia, the Austrian army can advance no further toward Warsaw for the only roads across the marshes are mined and strongly held by the Russians. On the other hand the Austrians are obliged to defend Cracow and because of the Russian maneuvers can only meet the Russians along the line from Welliska to Bochnia under the most unfavorable conditions.

WHEAT TAKES BIG DROP AT OPENING OF MARKET

Chicago, Jan. 9.—Wheat dropped today as if struck with a hammer. Opening prices were in some cases nearly 2 cents a bushel lower than last night. May sold lower to $1.39 as compared with $1.40 7/8 at yesterday's closing. Fear of the effects of talk of an embargo on the export of bread stuffs as well as on arms and ammunition had much to do with the sudden decline.

300 BAKE SHOPS CLOSE BECAUSE OF ADVANCE IN FLOUR

Chicago, Jan. 9.—Between 200 and 300 small baking establishments have been compelled to close within the last few days on account of the high price of flour. It was learned today.

Authorities in the baking trade said that unless the market falls sharply within the next two or three weeks bread will be advanced to six cents a loaf.

Police Captains Must Purchase Motor Cars

Chicago, Jan. 9.—Captains in Chicago's police department must purchase automobiles and provide for their maintenance or lose $750 of their annual salary, it was ruled today by Mayor Harrison, after a conference with police officials.

The annual salary of the captains was raised to $3,000 last year, with the understanding that each should purchase a motor car. Recently it was discovered that not a captain purchased an automobile in compliance with the agreement.

PLAN TO CELEBRATE KAISER'S BIRTHDAY

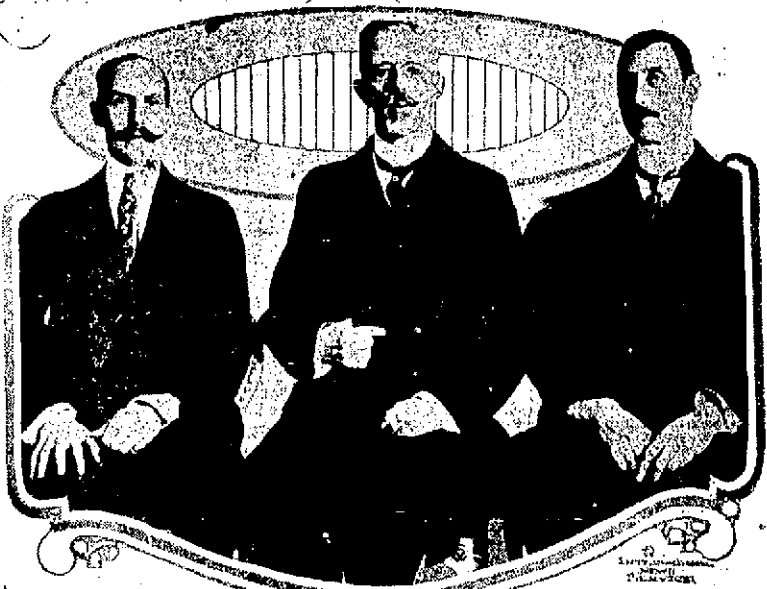

Amsterdam (via London, Jan. 9)—The Prussian ministry of state, according to a Berlin dispatch to the Telegraph has issued a notice that "in view of the seriousness of the times the greater public festivities, such as dinners, theatricals and dances should be postponed on the occasion of the forthcoming birthday of the Kaiser, Jan. 27.

On the other hand, the notice continues, "celebrations appropriate to the significance of the day are contemplated for all creeds."

The Cologne Gazette says that the Germans in Vienna are planning to send by post a million postcards bearing Emperor William's portrait, to the Emperor on his birthday as a million fold greeting. The Gazette deprecates the idea and hopes its proposer will abandon it.

SCANDINAVIAN MONARCHS IN CONFERENCE

An interesting chapter in the history of the European war was enacted when, on December 18, the monarchs of the three kingdoms that make up Scandinavia, Norway, Sweden and Denmark, assembled at the palace of King Gustav of Sweden, at Malmo, for the purpose of definitely establishing their status toward the belligerent countries. The conference, which lasted two hours, resulted in an agreement that their countries would continue in mutual peace.

PARAGUAY REVOLUTION WAS SOON SUPPRESSED

Washington, Jan. 9.—Details of the recent revolutionary outbreak at Asuncion, Paraguay, where rebels captured the president and held him prisoner for twelve hours were before state department officials today in a delayed telegram from American minister Mooney. The dispatch was summarized by the department as follows:

"The advisers state that the outbreak occurred at daybreak on January 2; that the president was placed in captivity and that he was held for twelve hours. It is stated that at seven o'clock in the evening of the second the revolution was suppressed. All during the day there was shooting of muskets and a vigorous cannonading. It was reported that there were not more than seventy-five killed and wounded. The national theatre and police headquarters were badly shattered and considerable damage was done to private property."

RUMANIA WILL MOBILIZE SOON

Paris, Jan. 9.—The Rumanian will be asked to take charge of week of January, according to the Petit Parisien, by the calling up of three classes totalling 135,000 men. The mobilization will be continued until 600,000 men are ready for the field.

It is expected that Switzerland will be asked to take charge of Rumanian interests in Germany and Austria, the Petit Parisien says, but it adds that the cabinet has made no definite arrangement as yet.

WILSON DEFENDS HIS POLICIES IN INDIANA SPEECH

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 9.—(On board President Wilson's train) President Wilson was on his way back to Washington today after making his first purely political speech, since he assumed the presidency. He will arrive at the capital at 4:40 o'clock this afternoon.

Gossip was rife among the president's friends over the meaning of his statement in his Indianapolis speech that "there may come a time when the American people will have to judge whether I know what I am talking about or not."

Some of his friends insisted that the president was merely referring to the fact that future generations will judge his actions and that he did not intend to convey the impression, which was gained by the crowd that he might be a candidate again for the presidency. Other of his friends pointed out that he evidently realized, because of the cheering, the construction that had been placed on his words, and yet he did not correct the impression beyond saying, "I didn't intend to start anything then."

Mexican Policy Is Defended
President Wilson announced himself as in favor of a national employment bureau for the first time in his political career; he defended his policy of "watchful waiting" in Mexico; he held the Republican party up to scorn as an organization which had not had a "new idea" in 30 years, and declared that the courts of the nation must adopt speedier efforts of administering justice in the near future.

He called upon the people of the United States to cast their gaze upon the European war if they could be satisfied with life in a free and peaceful republic.

"I love the Democratic party, but I love the country more," he said. He declared that "when ever the Democratic party ceased to be the party of progress he would leave it."

The President declared that the new currency act had been responsible for the first January decrease in many decades in which the money stringency had not occurred.

"The present Congress has the most remarkable record of any since the Civil war," he declared. He also created a sensation by declaring that "if the last November election had been a presidential one the Democratic party would have had a majority of votes in the electoral college."

Although the President was given a most prosaic and uneventful reception on the streets of Indianapolis, he was greeted by overflowing enthusiasm during the course of his address. He was given a reception at Senator Kern's home before his address and an automobile ride through the city after his speech.

SEEKERS FOR OFFICES ARE GATHERED AT COLUMBUS

Columbus, Jan. 9.—Governor-elect Frank B. Willis, arrived in Columbus from Washington at 8:45 o'clock today and went immediately to his hotel where he and Mrs. Willis will be quartered during the administration.

The arrival of Mr. Willis took a load of responsibility from the shoulders of his secretary, Forest Tipton, who for days has been stemming a big tide of office seekers and others who have been wanting to get the ear of the new governor. There are literally hundreds waiting to see the governor-elect and they were early in evidence today as Mr. Willis reached this city.

CANADIANS GET TASTE OF WAR

London, Jan. 9.—Part of the Canadian contingent, the members of which have been rather restless under their course of training on Salisbury Plain, has now been given a chance to show the men's fighting abilities in the trenches in northern France.

Princess Patricia's regiment, largely composed of men who have seen previous service, entrained yesterday for Southampton where they embarked for a French port. They are to be followed by the Scottish regiments of the contingent and later by other units, some of which have been attached to British regiments.

Shonts Admits The Possibility of Similar Subway Panics

THEODORE P. SHONTS

Theodore P. Shonts, president of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, which operates the subway system in New York, who has admitted that the recent accident in the subway, in which nearly two thousand passengers' lives were imperiled, is liable to be duplicated at any time. "The safeguarding of these who ride on the subway is a thing in our minds day and night," he said. "Everything that human ingenuity can devise that will add to the safety of the system is immediately placed in operation."

Magee Suit Being Heard In Cincinnati

Cincinnati, Jan. 9.—Hearing of the injunction suit which seeks to restrain Leo Hoernschmeyer, known in baseball circles as Leo Magee, from managing any one playing with any other team than the St. Louis National League club will be held before United States District Judge Hollister today.

The suit was filed last Saturday by the American Baseball and Athletic Exhibition Company who controls the St. Louis National League club and charged that Magee signed a contract with it to play with the St. Louis Nationals during the seasons of 1914 and 1915; that on November 11, last, he signed a contract to manage and play with the Brooklyn club of the Federal league and that he has been fulfilling the duties of manager of the latter club.

The suit asks for a temporary injunction which it requests later will be made permanent.

DISCOUNT RUMORS OF SALE OF U. S. GUNS

Washington, Jan. 9.—War department officials here today believed that an inventory taken by Secretary Garrison showing that none of the government's discarded Krug-Jorgensen army rifles have been removed from United States arsenals since the European war began, would set at rest persistent and widespread rumors that they were being sold to European belligerents.

In a statement based on this inventory, Secretary Garrison declared that the government has no present intention of changing its order issued last summer prohibiting the sale of these guns. The statement said there was no foundation for the rumors and that the order to stop the sale of the guns was issued to make sure that none reached the fighting nations.

Secretary Garrison further declared that despite this order and the lack of any basis whatever for a contrary belief, reports had been brought to his attention to the effect that rifles were being consigned for sale and were actually being delivered.

To ascertain the accuracy of such reports, Secretary Garrison

With a crash and a bang that still has the spectators bewildered, those Rexalls under the captaincy of George (Gracie) Wurster, made the Spider Spiders take to the ball and in the play house, Friday evening, stopping their onward rush like a flood wall brings to halt a runaway horse. Lending the first game by the narrow margin of one pin, those Rexalls came back with all sorts of violence and grabbed off the next two in apple pie order, leaving the Spiders scattered over unexplored territory, all wondering where they were "at." It was such a jolt that Captain Wurster and his chief lieutenant, Dr. Mylberg, are unable yet to locate their bearings but scattering parties have been sent out for them and it is hoped to bring them back to normal by the time the next conflict is staged.

The Bald Eagles after allowing the Corn Shuckers to hit off the first game, came back with all sorts of violence and managed to hang up the next two to their credit. No wonderful scores were made. William Briggs, lead off man for the Corn Shuckers, being the only player to back in the situation of select society, gathering 212 in his first game. "Chuck" Harsha, who was lined up as a Rexall last night, came within three pins of getting into the charmed circle, obtaining the 200 for 197. Captain Wurster, who called one of the preflight games ever seen on the alleys, when he spared in every frame during his second game, good for a 173 score. This game was the personification of experience and skill and Captain Wurster showed conclusively that he was there in a pinch. P. E. Selby, of the Bald Eagles, had a sparkling good night, two hit games being away and yesterday he started his good work right from the jump, gathering 173 as a starter. He fell down in the middle game, but came back strong in No. 3 and hung up the splendid score of 187. Dr. Keyes got into the knockout in his third game for the Rexalls, obtaining 192 and a little touch back kept him from getting into the select society. Sam McDaniel, who made his debut as a Bald Eagle, hit for in his first game, putting down 181. William Briggs, of the Corn Shuckers, had the best average of all players, and to him back to his old form.

The honor of knocking the low score of the league fell to Ralph Strick, who worked out for the first time in his life under the colors of the Bald Eagle. Try as he did, he could not get going and brought up with the magnificent effort of 63. Wade Kennedy, James Hager, George Prehn and a host of others, congratulated him most heartily. Ralph sold off a game in order to recover from his hard earned efforts and then came back like a genuine thoroughbred, reaping the large sum of 133. All

REASONABLE REQUEST

Property owners in Sunnyside have asked Mayor Frick that it is a mistaken idea that they wanted the city to give an alley for them, as reported at the council meeting of Wednesday night. They expect to provide both labor and material and merely want the city engineer to provide stakes and supervise the work.

There was a tremendous sensation over in Pittsburgh the other day. Did Barney Dreyfus buy a drink? Did some one dig up an honest politician in Smokehouse? Naw. There was but one conclusion, Honus is either looking for a wife or he is figuring on landing a soft snap when his diamond career ends.

Pace in sport is too often a gaudy dash, built upon a foundation of sand. And the average non-combatant often has queer ideas of what constitutes real worth. Through the campaign of 1914 the most valuable ball player in America for his games—the long route—was Edward T. Collins of Marlinton, N. Y., and Philadelphia, Pa. Collins led all pitchers in batting and he led all major league ball players in runs scored, runs driven in, and, in addition to this, was the brightest defensive star in baseball's sky.

Then, in a short four-game series for the world championship, Collins' team is beaten, and he does only fair work. The spotlight is immediately shifted from Collins to Hank Gowdy and others who were not with in forty leagues of the Marston family over the long road—the distance that completes the ultimate test.

Only fair, average ball player may be a roll-in wonder in a four or a six-game series. In this same series, any star may be a quiver of magnitude, but only a great ball player can operate a leading role from April through mid-October. Yet the average ball player who stars in a few World Series games is awarded the chaplet of glory through the Winter League, while the 151 games star is forgotten.

"BILLY" SUNDAY DECLARES FOR ORGANIZED BASEBALL

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 9.—Billy Sunday, the evangelist and former diamond star, was asked for an interview today on the baseball situation. He said he had no objection to the players being given him to get off his chest, as he said, a matter that, next to his religion, was the most important.

"I want to say right at the jump off that I haven't a particle of use for the Federal League, and I am opposed to the methods it has employed to get players. I haven't the slightest objection to any body's getting a player, but I don't think they should be given him to get off his chest, as he said, a matter that, next to his religion, was the most important."

"You believe in organized baseball?" he was asked.
"Yes, sir," snapped Sunday. "Organization is necessary in baseball, the same as it is in everything else. When you do away with organization in baseball you are going to break up the game."

"The reserve clause is necessary to the very life of baseball. To away with the reserve clause, which permits a club to hold onto a player after it has found and developed him, and you won't have much sport left in the baseball game."

"Would I, Plank, Bender and others have been the great pitchers that they are if they had not been carefully coached and developed? Without the reserve rule they would have had the right to quit the Athletics whenever they desired, and there would have been no incentive to train them and bring them to the point of greatest efficiency."

"You can say for me that if the baseball player isn't careful he will kill the game by jumping his contract just because he is offered a little more money."

"I blame the players for the present condition of affairs. They should stick to the fellow who helped them to get where they are. Lots of them are 'lemons' when they get into a beam. Eddie Collins was a

METER PLAN FOR WATER WILL NOT BE PRESSED UNTIL TESTS ARE MADE

That the time was not yet ripe for a general "metering" of the city because of the great cost it would add, that its real purposes would be misconstrued as a plan to discourage or curtail the consumption by a people already burdened with a very expensive municipal plant, that a limited number of test meters instead, be placed promiscuously for a period of a year by which time some practical plan could be worked out, and that there be a re-rating of the city were some of the conclusions reached at an adjourned meeting of city council Friday night.

At the close of an informal discussion which occupied several hours and in which many interesting facts were brought out, council by an unanimous vote voiced its confidence in the ability of the board of control members to grasp the situation and gave assurance of supporting whatever recommendations it made and if necessary appropriate what amount of money was needed.

The consensus of opinion was that Mayor Adam Frick's plan as suggested to Service Director William Gurgens was the only practical one to follow under the circumstances and after it was developed that the latter official had full authority in matters of this kind Mr. Wilson moved that he and the other board of control members and engineers determine upon some general recommendations to include test meters, a re-rating of the city and estimates and, if desired, council will confirm their action. Mr. Shump and others voiced their approval in unmistakable terms and assured the mayor and director that they were in full accord with their views on the subject of providing more revenue with which to meet the sinking fund interests and operating expenses of the city water works.

Made Clear At The Outset
The mayor made it clear at the very outset that a municipal plant was not intended as a money-making institution but that besides serving its purposes it should be self-sustaining.

In the absence of Judge George M. Osborn, who was detained by illness, Member George Guller was chosen to act as chairman of the meeting.

Mr. Wilson opened the discussion by inquiring of the service department the amount of water daily consumed and the cost of the production. Mr. Gurgens informed him that the daily consumption was between 3,000,000 and 3,500,000 gallons, then called upon Engineer George Shute to furnish data regarding the operating expenses, etc. Mr. Shute laid a wealth of information covering every department of the plant and was listened to with great interest. He said one of the surprising things about the new plant was the unusual amount of water consumed at night.

By shutting down the pumps and drawing only from the reservoir it was shown the night consumption was at the rate of 2,500,000 gallons. He said that apparently this was not due to any leakage from the mains. While the old pumping station will supply the city with 2,500,000 the new plant is required to pump 3,500,000 to supply the same demand. In other words when through accident or other causes the old one resumes it manages to supply the city with a less amount of water, some consumers drawing service from the city only when the clear and pure water is flowing. Mr. Shute thought the matter should be looked into. He thought that there was a fair prospect of reducing the operating expenses by getting pay for all water that is consumed. The night flow ought to drop and there was no doubt in his mind that that some large concerns were using water very meterically and if limited and metered it would be a just increase in revenue. As to the cost of water, Mr. Shute said he had prepared some figures exclusive of the payroll and other overhead charges.

Contractors Still On Ground
He said contractors were still on the ground and by their presence and work were causing the city employees extra work and trouble. Once they have gone there might be less work and trouble. On a 2,500,000 basis Mr. Shute said the cost of the water would be 4.76 cents and the interest 4.09, making it 8.85 cents as the total cost of the water. On the same basis it should be 7.79 cents in 1915 but a 3,500,000 basis will reduce that figure very materially. The actual cost of operating during the month of December exclusive of the pay roll, was $1000. The cost cost $763, chemicals and oils $200. On a basis of a 1000 gallon this cost 1.13. Figures fluctuate with the quantity of water consumed. The more water pumped the more it costs but the pay roll remains the same. The more water pumped the nearer it approaches 1.13 as the probable cost. In November it was about the same and 2 cents would be an outside figure for items of coal, etc., but not taking care of any depreciation of machinery. Under the guaranty given by the contractors the coal consumption ought to be materially reduced. At present the daily consumption amounts to 16 tons which is excessive. The high duty pumps are guaranteed for 100,000,000 and 3 tons of coal per day should be sufficient. Assuming that amount was being consumed that would leave thirteen to the turbines which should not require more than 3 2-10 tons. Thus, it is shown that quite a discrepancy is being saddled upon the city or that three times more coal is burned than should be. Mr. Shute felt the amount should be reduced to 7 or 8 tons which would be cutting it in half and mean a saving to the city of $380 per month. He said it was now being arranged to heat the evaporation on the coal and thermometers and record blanks put to use in keeping check on the excess fuel with a view to some adjustment with the contractors. Firemen were keeping tab on the buckets of coal hoisted and consumed, etc., and it was already productive of better results.

Use Vacuum On The Pumps
Relative to the tunnel, he said, it was plugged sufficiently that a vacuum had been on the pumps at times. The gauge placed in the tunnel shows that on an elevation of 6 feet in the Ohio river the pumps won't deliver capacity. While guaranteed to lift 100 feet they only lift 84 feet. Tests have proven that 4,000,000 gallons can be produced with the turbines at very nearly the same price as 3,000,000. The flushing of the tunnel, he continued, was surprising cheap. It had been done in from one to five minutes with good results and can be done three and four times per day with a consumption less than 25,000 gallons. The material does not stick in strainers and immediately flows down stream. If it does not get any worse than at present, high water conditions will be all right, but a 100 foot lift is needed and the turbines have not sufficient horse power to throw such a lift.

Mayor Frick was rather reluctant to go on with the discussion owing to the absence of Judge Osborn. He said that there was nothing definite, nothing certain and nothing fixed and it was largely guess work as to what it was going to cost to operate the new plant.

Concretely, in order to determine the amount of water used and the cost the four seasons of the year have to be taken into consideration. People consume more water during certain periods of the year than in others. One may equalize them by taking the months constituting a year and have a meter silently working and to be read at the end of the period and tell the actual amount consumed. Then you have something to work with. Then and only then can it be determined what rate shall be asked in order to meet the sinking fund, the interest charges and operating expenses. He would have a limited amount of meters installed and then a minimum rate could be determined from the readings at the end of the first year. While it may reduce the cost of water to the small consumer it may increase the cost to the manufacturer, which would only equalize meters and pay for the actual consumption. He would want citizens to continue the normal use and not get scared and lessen their supply. He said the city now had such a capacity that it can supply water at a reduced rate. The city can afford to either reduce the rate or furnish surplus water at a low price, but the first year's income will have to be entirely eliminated. "We can give the people something practical and logical the whole proposition one against the other, but with the cost of installing meters, the expense of reading and collecting I question if the people would stand for far ther bonds on top of those already issued," said the mayor who gave it as a conservative opinion that it will take a year to work out a systematic plan. He said the number of rooms in a house had no bearing on the water consumption and that past ratings were faulty in this respect.

Expenditures Exceed Receipts
Mr. Wilson said that with the expenditures constantly exceeding the receipts and with the bonded indebtedness it occurred to him that some temporary measures should be employed to wards cutting down the deficit during the time the city was experimenting with meters. He suggested a re-rating of the city and that special attention be given to the larger consumers. He ventured there many of these who were not paying enough for water but probably willing to pay more. He estimated that it would cost from $50,000 to $75,000 to equip the entire city with meters.

Mr. Shute at this juncture informed council of a tentative agreement that had been entered into with the Carlyle company which firm owing to the collapse of its water tank, now desired its supply of water from the city in the future.

A city ordinance provides for a rate of 9 cents per 1000 gallons but in this case it meant a mere delivery devoid of all expense and the Carlyle company was given a rate for one year of $600 to be paid in advance semi-annually, to furnish and maintain its own pipe-line. The only expense to the city is that of installing the meter and the company to pay a rate of 5 cents for all excess water used. All considered this a good contract, meaning a net profit to the city, and the action of the board of control was confirmed.

Consumers Are Paying Enough
Mr. Shute felt that private consumers in Portsmouth were paying enough for water and that the main object of meters would be more to curtail the consumption among those inclined to be wasteful. He would place meters among such consumers. The per capita consumption in Portsmouth said he, was 125 gallons which is much larger than in some cities where meters are in general use. Mr. Wilson thought the 9 cent rate excessive and suggested a sliding scale. Mr. Shute explained to him that such it really was.

The mayor advocated an extension of the city service to suburbs and Seabrook as a means of raising revenue. "We ought to have more consumption of water, it would have a tendency to reduce the cost and help meet the $300,000 the new plant has cost the people of Portsmouth," said he.

Mr. Shute said the water works receipts in 1913 amounted to $57,500 and in 1915 would probably reach $60,000 so that the water works was not going to show such a great deficit after all. The interest on bonds, he said, amounted to $29,829 and $34,900 might be used as a fair estimate for running the plant, leaving an actual deficit of $5,000, not including the retirement of bonds. In answer to a query from Mr. Shump as to what the actual income should be, Mr. Shute said it should be enough to sink the city bonds. He said the local situation was unusual in that practically nothing had been paid off on the bonds on the old plant. He said $60,000 would be due May 1, 1916, $10,000 in 1920 and $83,000 in 1931, the latter two chiefly on pipe lines. So that the city is confronted with the problem of not only raising $39,000 interest annually but also of taking care of the principal which means at this time a heavy drain.

Mr. Shump in view of Mr. Shute's assurance that people were paying a satisfactory rate saw no use of going to the added expense of installing meters and believed in confining these only to the large consumers. Mr. Shute said as a class, people were paying about all that could be asked but that certain individuals are wasting water and consumption can not be checked only through meters.

Mayor Recalls Hilltop Shortage
The mayor now reminded council of the conditions of last summer when the extravagant use of water by persons down town in defiance of repeated appeals and warnings robbed the Hill Top district of a supply of water. If such extravagant consumers paid one-third or one-half more it would materially equalize the consumption and help the income. The thing to do was to exactly determine the normal consumption and the normal operating cost. He advised holding on to the flat rate as with it the city is sure of that much and should not part with it. Mr. Shute said it must be remembered that the meter plan should work both ways and once started those who wish, may demand that they be similarly equipped though he said they would soon realize that personally they were not benefited any.

The discussion now led to manufacturing plants having "one" or more water taps, but not in use and intended only for emergency or protection. Instances were cited where plants were so equipped, and judging from the "mysterious flow" from the reservoir, said Mr. Shute, they were using city water when the new plant operated, only to fall back on their own private supply the moment the Hill street station was put to running. Director Gurgens said he was unable to say whether these were paying for service or not. Mr. Wilson favored making such firms pay annually for such taps, whether used or not, and was supported in his stand by the mayor and others present. Mr. Shute declared that such an arrangement would bring in some just revenue and big returns the first year.

Mr. Gurgens at some length described the waste of water due to the practice of some people allowing hydrants to run all night, rather than go to the trouble of wrapping them against freezes, and the extravagance at livery barns, ice plants, etc. He also told of the various methods employed by some property owners in depriving the city of revenue due it, by filling cisterns during certain periods, and the moment their houses are vacated, order the water supply shut off until they became tenanted again.

Clerk George Gableman raised the point that the law plainly provided that the service director had authority to fix the rates, and was borne out in his statement by City Solicitor Stanley McGill.

Mr. Shump, who had announced the mayor's plan "hooked" went to him, therefore withdrew a motion empowering the board of control to purchase a limited number of control to purchase a limited number of meters and it was decided that instead the director bring in his recommendations and ask for the appropriation needed.

Mr. Gurgens advocated a re-rating of the city as a good move, if properly conducted. He cited instances of property owners paying for only the houses on the front end of their lots, entirely overlooking their alley houses. The soil plunders, too, had been negligent in not refusing taps, but were now showing a disposition to comply with the rules.

Mr. Westphal raised the question of the 5 cent rate granted the Carlyle company, probably influencing other industries to demand similar rates. The mayor and Mr. Shute assured him that the Carlyle plant was outside the corporation limits, located in close proximity to the pumping station, and that to supply it was absolutely no expense to the city whatever, while it meant something to maintain the lines leading down into the city. Mr. Westphal also inquired what steps had been taken to supply New Boston and was informed that citizens of that village were putting in serious-

VICTIM CONFRONTS THE ACCUSED NEGRO

Henry Stinnie, who was arrested Friday afternoon on suspicion in the assault case of Zelma Arthurs, was given a preliminary hearing in police court Saturday morning. When the Arthurs girl was brought into the open court ten negroes secured by Chief of Police McCarty were lined up and the victim was asked to pick out the man whom she thought was the one who committed the assault on her.

Surveying the motley crowd closely the Arthurs girl halted in front of Charles Spaulding. "That looks like the man," she said. And on going further around she stopped in front of Henry Stinnie. "He looks like the man too." She failed to recognize the coats worn by Spaulding and Stinnie. The latter put on the second coat, but the Arthurs girl failed to recognize it, insisting that the man who assaulted her had on a green coat. Spaulding and Stinnie stood up in front of victim and were asked to address her. She said Stinnie's voice sounded more like the man she heard Thursday night than Spaulding's.

The hearing is still going on.

American Weddings Scarce In London

London, Jan. 9.—American weddings in London are now very rare and the usual number of holiday weddings among Americans traveling in England will be lacking. There are few Americans in England now outside of the regular colony, and furthermore, the Church of England has shown a disposition to discourage the issuance of licenses to non-residents who desire to waive the formality of church regulations and have a license granted without the reading of banns and other preliminaries which consume at least two weeks.

At one time Americans were much given to seeking these special licenses and arranging weddings in great haste. The Bishop of Canterbury grants such licenses to Englishmen only when there are urgent reasons, such as illness or unexpected military or naval orders which would make it impossible to comply with the church's regular requirements.

In the case of Americans, or other foreigners desiring to marry in England, the same consideration will be shown in an extreme emergency but the church has made very clear its unwillingness to issue special licenses simply because the parties to the marriage do not want to comply with the regular requirements.

French Wives Have No Word of Husbands

Paris, Jan. 9.—Instances of French women who have been widows since early in the war and are still ignorant of their husband's fate are often coming to light.

It is not only that the authorities have been slow in communicating notice of casualties, but that friends and relatives who have heard of deaths at the front have evaded the responsibility of cracking the news, hoping that identifications of the dead have been mistaken and that the missing one may turn up eventually.

A case which came to the writer's notice is probably typical of many. A young woman who was accustomed to dine with her brother, a newspaper man, at a restaurant largely patronized by men of that profession, has appeared nightly at the restaurant alone ever since her brother was called to join his regiment, and inquired if his co-workers had heard anything of him. From a wounded comrade who returned to Paris they learned that the girl's brother was killed more than two months ago, but none of the men has had the heart to break the news to the sister.

There are also thousands among the 6,000,000 school children of France most of whose fathers are in the army, who have failed to learn the true answer to their repeated queries during the holiday season: "Why doesn't papa come home?"

The answer probably cannot be given in a majority of cases until the publication of the full lists of losses, which, however, has not yet been decided upon by the French government.
